Fire out of lunar orbit tonight

Astronauts set for return

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16's explorers fire out of lunar orbit tonight to start the long journey home with a treasure ship of rocks that scientists believe will prove the moon long ago was wracked by volcanoes.

The major finds came Sunday, on the third moon drive that almost was canceled because Mission Control felt the astronauts might be tired and pressed for time as a result of their late landing Thursday night.

They return with 245 pounds of materials which represent perhaps the oldest and most significant samples yet collected on the lunar surface. Locked inside are secrets of how the moon was born more than four billion years ago.

Geologists are certain that John W. Young, Charles M. Duke Jr. and Thomas K. Mattingly got everything they sought during man's fifth moon landing mission, primarily the volcanic evidence.

The astronauts trigger the command ship Casper's big engine at 9:16 p.m. tonight to begin the 66-hour, 240,000-mile voyage back to earth. Splash-down is scheduled Thursday in the Pacific Ocean.

The three astronauts were reunited Sunday night after Young and Duke blasted off the moon in the cabin section of the lunar ship Orion and skillfully maneuvered it to a linkup two hours later with Mattingly in Casper.

"What a ride! What a ride!" Duke shouted as Orion blasted away from the mountainous Descartes plateau at 7:36 p.m. CST ending a 71-hour surface expedition during which the moonmen set records for the amount of rocks collected, time on the surface and speed traveled by their classy moon buggy.

The two ships maneuvered around one another as Mattingly took pictures of the effects of the liftoff on Orion's thin skin, then they gingerly moved together nose-to-nose. "I believe we got everything we went for," said Dr. Tony England, a scientist-astronaut who was capsule communicator during much of the flight.

"It was an outstanding success — really crowning achievement for the Apollo 16 crew," said flight controller Pete Franks.

The main goal was to find volcanic evidence as they drove their moon car over the Descartes plateau and on and around Stone Mountain. Experts here believe that evidence is tucked away in the carefully documented sample bags the astronauts are bringing home.

Many records, one failure

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—Apollo 16 starts home today with a record of successes and one failure.

Here's a capsule summary of the accomplishments in man's fifth moon landing:

Finding of rocks believed formed by the volcanoes which shaped the early moon.

● Most rocks gathered on moon — A total 245 pounds, or 30 pounds more than the first three moon landings combined and 76 pounds more than Apollo 15.

● Longest total hours exploring the moon's surface — 20 hours, 14 minutes — and longest single excursion — moon drive II which lasted 7 hours, 23 minutes.

● Fastest lunar speed on wheels — 11 miles per hour in the rover during the third excursion.

● First landing in the moon's highlands. The other landings were in maria, or plains, areas of the moon.

● Largest single rock collected on the moon. The astronauts are bringing home a small boulder weighing 40 pounds.

● Largest lunar crater ever visited, North Ray, three-quarters of a mile wide and 600 feet deep.

● First major lunar surface experiment to fail. A power cord to the heat flow experiment was broken, ruining the device, while it was being deployed.

Scientists acclaim mission to highlands

By BILL STOCKTON

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Scientists are acclaiming Apollo 16's mission to the Descartes highlands where the astronauts collected rocks believed formed by the fiery volcanoes that shaped the early moon.

"We have little doubt they've looked at examples of the early volcanic processes that formed the highlands," said Dr. William Muehlberger, head of the Apollo 16 geology investigation team.

Moreover, man now has a fourth nuclear-powered geophysics station on the moon returning satisfactory data about moonquakes and the lunar magnetic field.

The major blight upon the mission achieving its scientific goals occurred, however, when John W. Young stumbled while erecting the station and tore loose a cable to the heat flow experiment. The experiment, critical to learning about heat still in the lunar interior, couldn't be repaired.

"If it hadn't been for the heat flow cable breaking, we'd have a perfect mission even though we had to cut the third EVA moonwalk short," said Dr. Fred Horz, a Manned Spacecraft Center geologist who helped train Young and Charles M. Duke.

Apollo 16 went to the lunar highlands because they were believed to be much older than the flat lunar maria or seas that are filled with volcanic flows. Tantalizing bits of quite old lunar rocks had been found in the maria, apparently thrown there from the highlands.

The Descartes Mountains, two of which Young and Duke visited during their lunar exploration, are believed to have formed by lava upwelling from within the moon.

At about the same time, or perhaps slightly later, a great storm of meteorites pelted the moon. They created sheets of finely ground up lunar material that flowed across the moon, perhaps at speeds of several hundred miles an hour. The sheets, which weren't molten, settled into the basins between the volcanic mountains.

These "fluidized sheets," formed the Cayley formation, the plains on which the lunar lander Orion set down.

Here, however, some of the geologists differ. A few believe the Cayley formation originated from molten lava flows instead of the fluidized sheets.

The matter probably will be resolved in laboratories when the 245 pounds of rocks collected are analyzed.

While Young and Duke prowled the highlands, crewmate Thomas K. Mattingly II orbited the moon in the command ship Casper, manning a battery of instruments remotely surveying the lunar surface.

Price board ready to set rollbacks

NEW YORK (AP) — The Price Commission will order hundreds of millions of dollars in price rollbacks and customer refunds in the next few weeks, its chairman announced today.

Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said the reason is that the commission's limit on profit margins is beginning to take hold as a second line of defense against inflation.

Grayson, speaking of the matter publicly for the first time in remarks for the annual meeting of The Associated Press, said he hopes the announcement will help rally public opinion behind controls.

"In a very few words I would like to inform you that beginning late last week, the Price Commission inaugurated a series of major actions which will result in hundreds of millions of dollars of price reductions, which will roll back current prices of some of the country's largest companies to their base-period levels."

Meanwhile, Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, told automobile manufacturers not to expect approval of large price increases.

In a speech prepared for the Economic Club of Detroit, Rumsfeld said steel companies' hold-the-price-line pledge "is a significant step in the effort to reduce inflation, a step which should be reflected in the prices of 1973 model cars."

Grayson explained that the rollbacks and customer refunds will result from orders based on a Commission ruling that has attracted little public notice.

This rule, in addition to the commission's basic dictate that any price hikes must be justified by cost increases, says that price increases cannot be so large as to raise the profit portion of each sales dollar above the average for the best two of the past three years.

Grayson said now that large companies—those with more than $50 million in yearly sales—are beginning to file required quarterly reports, this profit-margin rule is starting to have effect.

Recently, the Price Commission ordered two firms to roll back prices because of inflated profits. Grayson has said that based on first reports, perhaps 10 per cent of America's large businesses would be required to roll back prices for this reason.

Reds pour into new theater

Neither side tried to win in highlands—until Sunday

By PETER ARNETT

PLEIKU, Vietnam (AP)—South Vietnam's rolling, unpopulated central highlands used to be a war theater where neither side tried very hard to win, an "economy of force" war in military terms. Until Sunday night.

Then 20 North Vietnamese tanks roared in along a dirt road from Laos. Heavy artillery guns opened up from hidden mountain positions. A South Vietnamese division headquarters was engulfed and overrun.

Americans and South Vietnamese in Pleiku, the highlands capital, have for weeks been forecasting that the major drive of the current general offensive would come here.

The enemy actions at Quang Tri and An Loc are limited. He wants Kontum, Pleiku and Binh Dinh provinces and will try for them soon," argued the senior American adviser for the region, John Paul Vann.

Saigon was slow to get the message. Government forces have always been extremely thin in the highlands. In Kontum Province the two regiments of the 22nd Infantry Division had been beefed up earlier in the year with a division of airborne troops. But when the communist offensive began across the demilitarized zone three weeks ago, President Nguyen Van Thieu tried to take the airborne from the

North Viet tanks, troops rip highlands

SAIGON (AP) — A North Vietnamese division crushed the northern defenses of Kontum City in the central highlands today, driving the South Vietnamese into retreat. Air and sea battles erupted deep inside North Vietnam, in the Gulf of Tonkin and the Gulf of Siam. The North Vietnamese 2nd Division, spearheaded by more than 20 tanks, rolled southward across Highway 14 through Tan Canh and Dak To, the anchor of South Vietnamese defenses guarding the highlands provincial capital of Kontum City, said to be the ultimate objective of the enemy's 26-day-old offensive.

A radio message was sent out to the scattered and badly battered South Vietnamese 22nd Infantry Division, which had its forward command post at Tan Canh and a regimental command post at Dak To, to pull back to a new defensive line at Vo Dinh on Highway 14. This is about 15 miles south of Tan Canh and about 10 miles north of Kontum. Other lesser bases and towns crumbled in the path of the North Vietnamese onslaught.

In the air war, the U.S. Command said, about 10 surface-to-air missiles were fired at B52 strategic bombers raiding North Vietnam. One of the bombers sustained what the command termed "minor battle damage."

A U.S. helicopter was shot down near Dak To, north of Kontum, and the four crewmen were killed. It was the 22nd American helicopter lost since the offensive began, the U.S. Command said. Seventeen planes also have been lost, and total air crew casualties are 25 Americans killed, eight wounded and 35 missing, the command said.

The United States sent its big B52 bombers to within 80 miles of Hanoi to attack supply depots, railroads, highways and marshalling yards at the big coastal city of Thanh Hoa.

For the first time in the war, one of the giant bombers was reported hit over the North, by fragments from a surface-to-air missile, but it returned safely to Da Nang with 30 holes in its fuselage and a ruptured fuel tank. There were no casualties among the six crewmen.

Another American plane, an Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bomber, was shot down near Dong Hoi, 45 miles above the demilitarized zone, and the two crewmen were pulled from the Tonkin Gulf by a Navy helicopter.

Two U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers were hit by shore fire. No casualties were reported.

Nine Americans were wounded and three buildings were damaged by a 13-round rocket barrage against the Da Nang Air Base, the biggest in South Vietnam from which raids are flown against North Vietnam.

highlands and send them north.

"We fought like hell to keep them here," one senior American said. "Saigon was not interested in us. They thought it was the same war up here, the economy of force war, and that the enemy objectives were limited."

It took the loss of the coastal district of Hoai An, and three fire bases on "Rocket Ridge" above Kontum last week, to get Saigon's joint general staff really interested in what was happening.

The air over Pleiku got thick with generals in helicopters. U.S. Air Force transports swarmed through the skies with supplies, recalling the huge American buildup in the highlands in 1966-67.

But American military advisers in the Kontum area say it's all too late and too little.

"We will just have to get used to the idea of losing a lot more territory," commented an American major wounded early last week. "The other side obviously means business, and there is little we can or will do about it."

Hanoi has amassed a powerful force in Kontum, twice as big as anything sent there in the past, according to American intelligence assessments.

Thai army 'disappointing'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite years of U.S. aid and advice, Thailand's army has disappointed American military officials by its performance in a major test against communist insurgents.

An analysis of an operation by 12,000 Thai troops against an estimated 600 rebels in northcentral Thailand concluded that government forces exhibited lack of aggressiveness and poor training.

In addition, Thai commanders were criticized for using their troops in big, unwieldy formations and for inadequate use of combat intelligence.

As a result, Thai military leaders were said to have decided that new tactics and methods will have to be developed.

Thailand long has been regarded by U.S. defense officials as important to the anti-communist position in Southeast Asia.

It has become more important to U.S. strategy in recent years because most of the Air Force B-52 bombers and fighter-bombers flown against the enemy in North and South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia operate from bases in Thailand. Most of the 34,000 American military men in Thailand are involved in the air war.

In the past five years, the United States has provided about $500 million in military aid to improve and modernize the Thai armed forces. About 525 U.S. advisers and trainers, including Green Berets, are working with the Thai forces.

The American advisers are under orders to stay out of any fighting between Thai units and insurgents inside Thailand, U.S. officials say.

Starting in late January, the Thai command sent an army division, five artillery battalions and warplanes against insurgents holed up in a mountain stronghold in the vicinity of Phitsanulok.

According to U.S. estimates, government forces suffered more than 70 killed and 270 wounded in the weeks-long operation. The insurgents, described in U.S. reports as communist-led hill tribesmen, lost at least seven killed.

BRF gunshot victim off critical list

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special)—A spokesman from Black River Memorial Hospital said today David Harrison, 31, Jackson County, had been taken off the critical list and was in improved condition.

Harrison had been taken to the hospital by ambulance early Saturday morning with a gunshot wound in his abdomen.

Forrest Blackdeer, 22, Winnebago Indian Mission, is being held in Jackson County jail in lieu of $5,000 cash bond. He has been charged with doing great bodily harm to another, with the hearing date set for May 1.

According to the Jackson County sheriff's office, they had received a call at 2:40 a.m. Saturday from Deputy Reuben Rave at the Indian Mission, reporting a shooting. When officers arrived at the Mission, they found Harrison at the Betty Greengrass residence. He told them he had been shot by Blackdeer.

Pedestrian hit; Goodview man charged

FOUNTAIN CITY, Wis. — A Goodview man has been charged with hit and run of a pedestrian, where injuries were involved, as the result of a Saturday accident about 9 p.m. on Highway 35 by the bridge, just south of the Midway Tavern.

The hit and run victim, Robert Collins, 18, Fairview Park, Ohio, a student at Lea College, Albert Lea, Minn., was listed as in satisfactory condition this morning at St. Marys Hospital, Rochester.

The alleged driver, Thomas J. Chick, 19, 4730 6th St., Goodview, was held overnight in the Buffalo County jail and then released Sunday on $500 bond. He will appear in Buffalo County Court on the charge May 22 at 10 a.m.

According to Wisconsin State Patrolman Gerald Kappmeyer, the driver of the hit and run vehicle was northbound, pulled out to pass another vehicle and struck Collins who was walking south on the left shoulder of the highway, along with two other persons, and then left the scene of the accident.

Collins was not thrown after the impact, said Kappmeyer, but reportedly just "spun around and sort of sat down on the roadway." He was taken to Community Memorial Hospital, Winona, and then transferred to Rochester.

Some time later, said Kappmeyer, Chick called the Buffalo County Sheriff's office and reported that an unidentified motorist had struck his vehicle, a 1969 hardtop, while it was parked on the Cochrane - Fountain City High School parking lot.

KAPPMEYER then went to the school parking lot, with debris which had been left at the scene of the earlier hit and run accident. He arrested Chick about 1 1/2 hours after the accident.

The patrolman said that samples of the debris have been sent to the Wisconsin Crime Laboratory at Madison for an expert's opinion.

Chick's car received an estimated $150 damage to its left front fender and grill. Assisting in the investigation was Thomas Baertsch, Buffalo County deputy.

Brownsville boy burned in crash

A 16-year old Brownsville, Minn. boy remains in serious condition from burns at Saint Marys Hospital, Rochester, Minn., today, following a two-car accident at 11:35 p.m. Sunday on Highway 61 1 1/2 miles north of Dakota, Minn.

According to the Minnesota Highway Patrol, a small, foreign-model car driven by Randolph M. Grams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grams, Brownsville Rt. 1, was southbound on Highway 61 when he lost control of the vehicle, crossed the center cement divider on the highway and went into the northbound lane. The car then recrossed the divider into the southbound lane, flipped over on its top and then onto its side facing north.

The Highway Patrol said a tractor-semi-trailer, which was southbound at the time, narrowly missed the Grams car but a car directly behind the rig, driven by James Nogosek, 23 Lenox St., Winona, struck the Grams overturned vehicle.

Grams was thrown from the vehicle, his body was saturated with gasoline from the ruptured tank in the front of the vehicle, and his clothing caught fire.

Some passing motorists stopped to render first aid and covered the injured youth with a blanket to smother the flames. They then notified authorities.

Grams was taken by Praxel ambulance to Saint Francis Hospital, La Crosse, Wis., but was transferred early this morning to Saint Marys where he is listed as in serious condition with burns over 50 percent of his body.

Miss Nancy Groth, a passenger in the Nogosek car was reported to have cuts and a bloody nose but was not taken to the hospital. Grams was alone in his car.

The 1964 Grams foreign sedan is listed as a total loss while damage to the 1969 Nogosek hardtop is $975.

The Highway Patrol said the road, a straight stretch, was dry with occasional wet spots at the time of the accident.

The accident remains under investigation.

Court delays ruling on state remap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today temporarily delayed the effects of a ruling cutting the size of the Minnesota state legislature.

A brief order issued by the court gave no indication when the justices will act on a formal appeal.

A three-judge federal district court in St. Paul has ordered the state Senate reduced to 35 members from 67 and the House reduced to 105 members from 135. The panel said it had to change the size of the legislature in order to apportion it in accordance with the U.S. and Minnesota constitutions.

Minnesota officials appealed to the Supreme Court for a hearing Feb. 11. The court has not yet acted on the appeal.

The Minnesota primary is scheduled for Sept. 12 and the general election for Nov. 7. The state Senate sought a stay from Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who has jurisdiction over cases from that state. He turned the application over to the full court for its action.

The order was unanimous. Last month the high court denied a motion to expedite its consideration of the appeal. State officials said this meant the case probably would not be heard until after the election.

The district court's decision requires all Minnesota legislators to stand for election this fall.

For courthouse

Federal funding must get regional OK: HUD

A federal funding application for the Winona County courthouse remodeling project must have the approval of a regional planning agency, county officials were told Friday.

Officials of the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) had previously told local officials that regional planning approval would not be necessary, but discovered their error and called Winona Friday to correct it.

County representatives had met with HUD last Tuesday to discuss the application for federal historic sites funding, and were told the county might be eligible for up to $250,000 for renovation of the exterior of the courthouse.

They were told at that time that historic sites grants did not fall in the list of grants that require review and approval by a regional planning group, but HUD officials discovered later that such review is mandatory for historic sites funding.

There is currently no regional planning agency in existence that includes Winona County, but one — called the Southeastern Minnesota Area-wide Planning Organization (SEMAPO) — is in the formative stages.

SEMAPO is currently slated to include five counties: Winona, Wabasha, Goodhue, Houston and Fillmore, and HUD has already indicated that such a group will meet its specifications for regional planning groups.

That organization is the brainchild of the Winona city administration, and has been in the formative stages since late last summer.

HUD officials indicated that the regional organization must be certified by them before the county's historic sites application can be received. County officials have indicated that they will proceed with preliminary work on their funding application in the meantime.

Ethier petition now under study

A petition for grant of tenure submitted by Robert O. Ethier, director of admissions and records at Winona State College, was taken under study Friday by the Rules and Appeals Committee of the Minnesota State College Board at a meeting in St. Paul.

Ethier, who has been a member of the college staff since Sept. 1, 1968, with the rank of assistant professor, initiated the appeal proceedings after he had been advised last May 14 by Dr. Robert A. DuFresne, Winona State president, that his employment at the college would not extend beyond next June 30.

In taking the petition under advisement, the committee also requested Dr. DuFresne to present a formal statement of reasons for the termination of Ethier's employment.

Dr. DuFresne told the Daily News this morning that a meeting of the Winona State College Committee in Appointment, Promotion and Tenure would be scheduled to review the case and that the committee's formal recommendation would be presented to the College Board's Rules and Appeals committee. He said he didn't know when the meeting of the WSC committee meeting would be held.

DURING THE hearing, committee members questioned Dr. DuFresne regarding various aspects of the case and heard a request made by Ethier's attorney, George M. Robertson Jr., Winona, for extension of Ethier's contract beyond June 30.

The committee said a decision on the contract extension request would be made within two weeks.

In his request for extension, Robertson noted that the question of Ethier's employment probably would not be resolved by June 30, that Ethier had been unable to obtain any other employment after that date and that if he is not granted a contract extension he would be without employment until the issue is resolved.

The attorney asserted that in the proceedings thus far there has been no show of fact that Ethier had performed his duties other than "exceptionally well."

ROBERTSON said June 30 termination would be financially harmful for Ethier and could be for the State College System if the proceedings should result in his receiving tenure.

Should this happen, Robertson said, Ethier would be in a position to present a claim for damages and that litigation would be costly both to the employee and the state, particularly to the latter if the claim were to be allowed.

Robertson noted there was precedent established in the courts for extension of contract in a matter such as that before the board.

Pepin boy, 8, killed by rifle bullet

It accidentally discharged, with the bullet going through the window of a door, and striking Kevin, who was standing in the house, on the other side of the closed door.

The five Peterson children were reportedly home alone when the accident happened, according to the sheriff's report. Their father is currently working in Nebraska and their mother had flown there to be with him for the weekend.

The oldest Peterson child, 13-year-old Kirk, called the doctor and the ambulance. The sheriff's office was called at 2:30 p.m.

Assisting in the investigation were Pepin County Traffic Officer George Plummer, Deputy Sheriff William Mountin and Village Marshal Lon Meixner.

A third grader at Pepin Elementary School, Kevin was born Oct. 19, 1963, in Laurel, Neb., to Lowell and Harriette Polen Peterson. The family moved to a farm on the outskirts of Pepin in 1968.

McGovern, HHH appeal to people of Pennsylvania

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie aimed television appeals at the state's major cities while Sens. George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey went directly to the people in today's campaign windup for Tuesday's Pennsylvania Democratic presidential primary.

Many observers place Humphrey ahead in the preference poll, but Muskie's backers say the support of Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Philadelphia Democratic Chairman Peter J. Camiel will enable them to elect a majority of delegates.

McGovern, meanwhile, was buoyed by a new poll showing him running ahead for Tuesday's Massachusetts primary, so the South Dakota senator spent today concentrating on votes in Pennsylvania.

He planned to blitz the state with stops at Philadelphia, West Chester, Chester, Lancaster, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Altoona and Allentown, then end the day in Boston.

Humphrey also planned a heavy round of personal campaigning by scheduling a helicopter tour of economically depressed southwestern Pennsylvania. The Minnesota senator predicted he would score a major victory in Pennsylvania.

Muskie of Maine centered his campaign stops in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and counted heavily on a tough, new television speech accusing President Nixon of "closed door deals" and tax giveaways. He demanded his rivals join his call for a 90-day freeze on food prices and executive salaries.

Pennsylvania Democrats will choose among Humphrey, Muskie, McGovern, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington in a nonbinding preference contest. They will also elect 137 of the state's 183 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Massachusetts will pick all of its 102 delegates Tuesday. The difference is that the delegates the voters pick will have to vote on the first convention ballot for the candidate who carries their district, or, in the case of at-large delegates, the state.

With McGovern planning only a wrapup stop in Boston, the only one of the 11 Democrats on the Massachusetts ballot spending all today in the state was Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas.

Mills planned to attend a rally in industrial Lowell after charging Sunday that President Nixon has turned a robust economy into a stagnant one by economic "ineptitude."

McGovern, who won the endorsement Sunday of the liberal Americans for Democratic Action, cautioned his Massachusetts supporters against paying too much attention to a new poll by the Boston Globe. The poll published Sunday gave McGovern 43 per cent, Muskie 19 per cent, almost a complete reversal of a poll published Feb. 13. The latest poll was a continuation of a trend registered in a sampling a week earlier that gave McGovern 38 per cent and Muskie 27 per cent.

Speaking to a Knights of Columbus breakfast in Medford, near Boston, McGovern said he hopes to show that his appeal has spread from the suburbs and campuses to working class areas.

Muskie, abruptly canceling a last-minute campaign trip to Massachusetts where some of his supporters are privately conceding defeat, received enthusiastic receptions in Polish-American parts of northeastern Pennsylvania before returning to Philadelphia for appearances at Polish, Jewish and black gatherings.

Muskie's television speech, taped Saturday morning, was carried in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh Sunday night and was scheduled for showing, in part or in full, on some two dozen stations in all major Pennsylvania cities today.

The Maine Democrat said a vote for him Tuesday would be a vote to freeze food prices, change America and reform taxes.

"This is the first round in the fight to move President Nixon out of the White House," Muskie said. "This is the first round in our fight for economic justice."

Humphrey's victory prediction came in an appearance Sunday on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation," broadcast from Pittsburgh.

"I'm going to win this one," the Minnesota senator predicted. But he hedged on his chances of taking a majority of the 137 delegates, saying, "I think we can get a plurality."

McGovern has predicted he will win a majority of the 239 delegates to be picked in the two states Tuesday.

Humphrey said he would back McGovern or any other "good Democrat" chosen to head the party's ticket. He said he does not consider Wallace to be a card-carrying Democrat.

Wallace spent Saturday in Pennsylvania, addressing more than 5,000 in Pittsburgh's Civic Arena in his only major appearance in the state. Jackson has not campaigned here, preferring to get a head start on the May 2 Ohio primary.

Hiking trail would link many states

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A proposed hiking trail from New England to North Dakota would link several northwestern recreation areas in Wisconsin, the Department of Natural Resources says.

Preliminary plans were announced last week for the North Country Trail, one of 14 cross-country paths authorized by Congress in the 1968 National Trails System Act.

Jerry Verstrate, a department planner working on the Wisconsin segment, said the state has chosen a corridor two miles wide in which to blaze the trail.

The corridor reaches Wisconsin near Hurley after passing Upper Michigan's Porcupine Mountains, runs southwest to Copper Falls State Park near Mellen, then west through Chequamegon National Forest to the Drummond area.

Then it turns north to the Bayfield peninsula into the Apostle Islands National Lakeshore and turns west to the Brule River.

The trail would work up the Brule and down the St. Croix River to the Danbury area before entering Pine County, Minn.

Verstrate said plans call for linking the trail with trails being developed in Iron County, the national forest and the Brule and St. Croix state forests.

Two full Red divisions aimed at Dak To valley

Two full North Vietnamese infantry divisions, the 2nd and the 320th, are aimed at the Dak To valley, Highway 14 and Kontum, assisted by two independent regiments of infantrymen, an artillery regiment and a sapper regiment.

This means 15,000 men backed by tanks and heavy artillery threatening Kontum.

The Hanoi battle plan goes far beyond Kontum. Senior Americans have expressed amazement at its boldness. It apparently calls for isolating the cities in the highlands by cutting the highway arteries, then taking the airstrips under direct fire. The ultimate aim seems to be to defeat Saigon on the highlands battlefield and capture major cities.

Step One was to take the An Khe pass and cut Route 19 between the coastal supply bases and Pleiku and Kontum. North Vietnamese forces did that two weeks ago and have not budged from the pass. Americans believe the enemy will soon cut the secondary route to the highlands, Highway 21 from Nha Trang.

Step Two is to slice up the region some more, cutting Highway 14 between Pleiku and Kontum cities, and Highway 1 between Qui Nhon and the northern districts of Binh Dinh Province, which is the most densely populated province in the country with one million people.

Step Three is to start battering the regular Saigon forces in the region. Bruising preliminary battles have already cut several infantry and airborne battalions to pieces.

The Kontum battlefield is getting all the attention. But Americans in coastal Binh Dinh see a major enemy effort against the population there. Hoai An district and its 32,000 people were lost last week. Nearby Hoai Nhon District seems destined next, with vulnerable Tam Quan District following.

"This means 200,000 people lost, and to think that two months ago we thought the war here was won," said a senior American in Qui Nhon.

The pessimistic outlook for Binh Dinh is based on the imbalance of the sides, tipped in favor of the North Vietnamese.

Senior Americans believe the only hope for the highlands and the coastal region in the long run is the proven inability of Hanoi to long sustain military drives.

However, two important factors could change this picture radically. The performances of Saigon's regular forces in the region have been spotty at best. There have been frequent reports of infantry battalions fleeing in panic. At Hoai An District the defenders threw away their weapons and charged into civilian clothes. A panic among the remaining force, in Kontum could bring disaster.

The second factor is the endurance of the North Vietnamese. Hanoi has been preparing this drive for at least two years.

The tiger takes infinite pains in stalking prey.

Astronauts set —

Mission to contribute as much as Apollo 15

They base this on extremely clear television pictures relayed to Mission Control and the expert descriptions of the moon walkers as they examined hundreds of rocks, including boulders the size of buildings on their third and final excursion Sunday.

The result, scientists here said, is a mission that will contribute just as much to lunar science as the Apollo 15 flight last summer.

After setting up a science station and exploring the Cayley Plains Friday, the astronauts drove halfway up 1,600-foot Stone Mountain Saturday in their quest for volcanic remnants and ancient lunar rocks.

But they made the most significant discoveries Sunday.

After two robust, happy-go-lucky but thoroughly professional moon excursions by the moonmen, officials gave the go-ahead for a shortened exploration Sunday, cutting it from seven to five hours.

The excursion brought their total on-the-surface time to 20 hours 14 minutes, nearly two hours longer than Apollo 15's record.

The astronauts drove 3.3 miles to North Ray crater and found its rim littered with huge boulders that towered as much as 50 feet above them.

They were business-like as they described the stark surroundings, collected carefully documented samples, chipped pieces off the boulder-pounded core tubes deep into the surface and made scientific readings.

Duke peered over the rim of the 600-foot-deep canyon, said he couldn't see the bottom, and remarked "Man is that ever a hole in the ground!"

They zipped down one hill in their battery-powered moon buggy and shouted with excitement.

They paid tribute to the lunar rover before leaving.

"There's old rover sitting there," said Young. "Boy, that's a good machine."

And Duke, who seemed to enjoy himself immensely on the moon, seemed reluctant to leave. As he entered Orion for the last time, he said:

"You just don't know how much fun this has been."

"We just set a new world speed record," Young announced. "Seventeen kilometers (almost 11 miles an hour) on the moon."

"Let's not set anymore," cautioned Mission Control.

Young, the Apollo 16 commander, frequently warned Duke, who fell several times during two earlier excursions, to watch his step.

The spacemen leaped about in what Young said was an abbreviated "lunar Olympics" to show earthlings how high they could bounce in the one-sixth gravity field.

Westmoreland talks of troop reduction

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP) — Gen. William Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, says reductions in the nation's military forces will mean greater reliance on the National Guard and reserve units.

Westmoreland, addressing the 22nd annual Wisconsin National Guard Association convention Saturday, said there will be greater efforts to encourage participation in the Guard.

Legislation proposed last month in Congress, he said, "included enlistment and reenlistment bonuses for the Guard, as well as other reserve components. This is essential in helping recruiting efforts."

The Pentagon's new policy of personal freedom for servicemen does not mean the military will "sacrifice order and discipline, nor condone permissiveness," he said.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly that professionalism remains our overriding concern," he said. "We have a modern army, not a mob army."

About 400 persons attended the convention. Officials said the Wisconsin Guard has more than 9,000 members and that a campaign is under way to raise the figure to 10,000 by July 1.

Lt. Col. Donald A. Anderson of Madison, an urban consultant in civilian life, was re-elected association president.

Other officers are vice presidents Hugh Simonson of Madison and Larry L. Tech of Eau Claire and treasurer Chris Nielsen Jr. of Madison.

Midwest farms could provide new fuel source

An old cornbelt economist's dream — combining gasoline and alcohol for automotive fuel — is being dusted off again these days.

The reasons for its revival seem even more compelling today than were those for its development in the early 1930s. Then it was seen as a way to get the abysmally-low price of corn up to decent levels. Now its development is urged as an effective means of curbing automotive exhaust pollution.

AN ALCOHOL-gasoline mixture presumably would burn more cleanly than engine fuels now in use, according to backers of the product. These proponents say it would produce much more satisfactory results than the pollution-reducing methods and materials now being tried — without notable success — by the automobile and petroleum industries.

Apparently the auto industry, deeply committed to the internal-combustion engine, won't be able to meet federal emission-control standards by the 1975 deadline, under prevailing conditions.

A new muffler system that's supposed to neutralize harmful exhaust gases hasn't shown up well in tests, from all present indications. An even dirtier engine, the Wankel, now is being tested by the industry. But because of its smaller size, this power plant can be equipped with an elaborate series of exhaust filters and baffles without exceeding space requirements of the conventional piston engine.

THE ADVANTAGES of a workable gasoline-alcohol blend seem obvious. Cleaner exhaust emissions, less dependence on an irreplaceable, increasingly-expensive petroleum supply and a healthy boost for the nation's farm economy are some of the principal ones.

Regardless of whether the automobile industry sticks with the present type of engine or converts to something else, the use of an alcohol-based fuel could very likely become widespread in the near future. — F.R.U.

Rural areas need first aid classes

Reflection usually follows in the wake of tragedy. Many times it is in the form of agonized thoughts about what might have been — the saddest words, as everyone knows, of tongue or pen.

Some of these sentiments have been aroused hereabouts by some accidents that perhaps could have had less tragic results had circumstances been slightly different. Human injuries that otherwise might be fatal can be treated and their threats nullified by the timely use of first aid.

In this area, at least, there's room for progress. Residents of rural parts of the county seldom have handy access to the kind of first aid courses that are routinely given in the city.

Civil Defense classes in such subjects could—and should—be offered uniformly throughout the county, for instance. One rural resident said he had to make a 50-mile round trip once a week to take such a course and was the only one in his entire township to do so.

Since it's precisely these areas that are farthest removed from medical treatment facilities, it's there that greater emphasis should be placed. — F.R.U.

The recent housing scandals in many cities, the shady construction contract dealings of local politics, even police rake-offs from gambling operations — these suggest that government takeover does not mean the cleaning up of activities. On the contrary, government takeover of gambling could mean a stronger footing for corrupt elements within government. We continue to believe that many citizens are unaware that the tax-relief and fight-crime arguments for state involvement in gambling are shams. Probably the biggest, though undiscussed, force behind such government involvement comes from those who want to extend the number of high-paying jobs inside government for patronage purposes. This, however, is seldom discussed. — Christian Science Monitor

Treasury Secretary John Connally told a congressional hearing the nation's power crisis may require laws designed to conserve energy. Most offices have at least a few workers who already have a lot of practice at conserving energy. — Minneapolis Star

Surviving adolescents

Russell Baker

WASHINGTON — One of the most critical periods of life begins when man discovers that his child has become an adolescent. After a few years of trying to live with this discovery, many people simply quit. Others more realistically perhaps, commit suicide. Divorce is common. Many people turn to crying, and even those who can't cry devote themselves extensively to misery.

There is very little that can be done during this difficult time, beyond surviving it. Under present laws dealing with homicide, child abandonment and slave labor, forceful attempts to secure relief will almost certainly end in grievous complications. All leading authorities agree that any goal more ambitious than survival is unrealistic and dangerous.

To survive, one must communicate with the adolescent, and to communicate he must be aware of addressing him in terms that he will lose his attention. There are any number of such terms, of course; on some days, any terms at all will lose his attention. We are not concerned with those days, however. Those truly dreadful days. What concerns us is the more average day when there is a reasonable chance to gain the adolescent's attention if we do not make the error of uttering a fatal attention crusher.

A few such crushers are set forth here, with brief analysis of their flaws.

● Almost all experts agree that there is one line no person should ever, under any circumstance, speak to an adolescent. It is the line that begins, "When I was your age . . ."

No adolescent has ever heard how this sentence ends because as soon as he hears the introductory clause, "When I was your age . . ." his eyes become glazed, his hearing mechanism goes dead and his mind, most often, leaps instantly from the scene and goes romping a thousand miles away.

Before it departs it may pause just long enough to think, in the privacy of its own lobes, as follows: "But you were never my age!" This should not alarm the parent. Secretly, all adolescents believe that their parents were born 45 years old. As a matter of fact, most 45-year-olds secretly believe the same thing about their parents.

● How did school go today? This line rarely fails to shut off communication. The answer is always, "fine." "How is the algebra coming along?" Same reply. The algebra is coming along "fine." School is always "fine," and algebra is "fine," and the composition of the Ciceronian oration is also coming along "fine," no matter that he has failed the last three algebra tests, can't translate "Britannia insula est," and hasn't been to school in three weeks.

In general, any conversation opening question that can be answered with, "fine," ought to be avoided.

● "Why does your room always have to look like a pigpen?" There is a wide range of communication killers in this form, and they should all be avoided. Adolescents hate rhetorical questions. They believe it is obvious why their rooms always have to look like pigpens. (It is a form of self-expression.) Anyone so dumb that he has to ask is not worth the attention needed to reply, because he could never understand the sensitive person's need for self-expression.

Similar conversation crushers are: "How many times do I have to tell you not to use the bath towels to wash the car?" "When are you going to grow up?" "What's the idea of blowing all the transistors in my stereo?"

● "Back in the depression when I was a kid . . ." will almost invariably turn the adolescent sulky and uncommunicative. This is because most adolescents suffer from poverty-envy. They blame their parents for denying them the really great poverty of the depression, so that they now have to fake the real thing by spending a lot of time and money for shabby work clothes. They don't want to be reminded that their parents were over-privileged.

● "It's time you realized that one of these days you're going to have to make a living." This stops communication not because the adolescent resents it, but because he doesn't know what it means. He has never heard of anybody "making a living." He has a living, hasn't he? He will always have one, won't he? Isn't that what the government is for? Why should he make another one?

Finally, of course, sex should never be discussed with an adolescent. He believes that sex was not invented until six or seven years ago, and he is embarrassed at the possibility that adults may ask him about sex, because he is not sure how much, if anything, they should be told about it at their age.

Tragic ignorance

a communist ally in Vietnam whose soldiers have more courage and endurance.

All this having been said, it is now apparently Hanoi's turn to demonstrate that its ignorance of America's psychology and America's politics is almost equal to our ignorance of theirs. They are supposed to be among the most patient people on earth, but they couldn't wait to let the logic of the American withdrawal from Vietnam work its way. They felt they could smash their war through the demilitarized zone, and defy the "understanding" they knew we expected, even if they had not agreed to it themselves, and destroy the South Vietnamese without the massive intervention of American air power in the North.

This was an assumption and a prejudgment of Washington as great as Kennedy's or Johnson's assumptions in the earlier phases of the war. Leave aside the wisdom or unwisdom of the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong — the main point in both cases is that war is unpredictable, and Hanoi, like Washington, misjudged the reaction.

HANOI IS NOW misconceiving the United States in other ways. It apparently thinks it can influence the outcome of the American Presidential election if it can embarrass and even humiliate President Nixon, but it would have to smash his Vietnamization policy all the way and destroy or scatter the Saigon forces to do that, and this would be such a humiliation for the President that the American voters might very well rally to his support and re-elect him.

Hanoi's handling of the American prisoners of war is an even better illustration of its misjudgment of American psychology and its own best interests. Hanoi is trying to win the battle of American public opinion. It thinks the American people are sick of the war, which is right, and that they will act like the French people after Dienbienphu, which is wrong.

They seem to believe that holding the American prisoners is their trump card in winning their battle for American opinion, and forcing President Nixon to settle the war on their own terms, and one can understand their logic in historical terms.

Seldom, if ever, in the history of warfare have prisoners been released before the terms of peace have been arranged, but the Americans are funny people. They care more about the human problems than the political problems. And in the present situation, the guess here is that they will be more likely to get out of the war if the prisoners are released and safe conduct for the remaining 69,000 American soldiers is assured, than if Hanoi holds onto them as hostages and demands Nixon knuckle under to their demands.

The attempt by Hanoi to win a classic victory on the battlefield and compel a settlement by holding the prisoners is probably as great a blunder as Kennedy's or Johnson's efforts to win by power in the 1960's. The lesson of this war is that physical power has not worked for either side, and it is not going to end the conflict by bombing Hanoi or invading the demilitarized zone, or holding the prisoners for blackmail.

THE FAMILIES of the American prisoners are now well-organized. They know better than anybody else that increasing the violence by a massive invasion of South Vietnam or by sending the B-52's against Hanoi and Haiphong is not going to settle anything, but keep their men in Hanoi's prisons.

If American opinion is Hanoi's objective—and it has been for a long time—its greatest opportunity is to release the American prisoners, not to the American Government, but to their families, and guarantee the safe exit of the last few thousand American soldiers.

These are really the popular objectives of the American people, not the defense of the Saigon Government, or the democratization of South Vietnam, or the future strategic configuration of Asia and the Pacific. But Hanoi, at the end of the war, has misjudged America, as Washington misjudged North Vietnam at the beginning. And this is the ultimate tragedy, for America is ready for a settlement, if the politicians on both sides will only give it back its prisoners and its soldiers.

The wreckage

Anthony Lewis

LONDON — Some analysts of the American political system argue that its malaise could be cured by making the major parties more responsible, with firm principles and loyalties. The example often cited is Britain, with her disciplined parties in parliament and her modern tradition of party government.

The parliamentary system can indeed work, but it is not just a matter of effective machinery. Like any other human enterprise, it depends on people — on leadership. When leaders are spineless or unprincipled, the system fails.

THAT IS THE interesting lesson of the latest convulsion in British politics. The resignation of Roy Jenkins as deputy leader of the Labor party, and of others from its hierarchy, is the most traumatic event for Labor in many years. And a major reason for the disaster is the man who now surveys the wreckage: Harold Wilson, leader of the opposition.

Europe is the issue that has undone Wilson and his party. As the world knows, Wilson as prime minister before June 1970, was an enthusiast for British membership in the Common Market. When his Conservative successor, Edward Heath, succeeded in negotiating entry, Wilson switched to opposition.

The reason Wilson gave was that the negotiated terms were not good enough for Britain. Literally no one closely involved in the negotiations under either Labor or the Conservatives believed that the terms were what any British government would have to pay to join the market.

But Wilson's friends argued that he really had to do what he did. The case went like this: the Labor party was divided on Europe. Only by opposing "the terms" could Wilson (1) hold the party together, (2) keep it from slipping into outright opposition to the principle of membership in the Common Market, (3) have a chance of defeating Heath in parliament, thus forcing an early election, and (4) maintain the national image of Labor as a mature and credible party ready to govern.

JENKINS AND other Labor supporters of the Common Market tried to reconcile their principles with Wilson's stated political objective of party unity. They decided to stay in the shadow cabinet, on the assumption that Wilson would help to protect them from being harried for their pro-European views.

What actually happened is that the party's left, strongly against the Common Market, used every possible occasion to harry Jenkins and his friends. And Wilson, rather than helping them stick to the European beliefs that he had once professed himself, joined in the fun of embarrassing them.

The last straw was a curious, indeed ridiculous one. A small group of Conservative backbenchers opposed to the Common Market put down an amendment to the entry legislation requiring that a national referendum be held first. The referendum idea has always been considered incompatible with responsible parliamentary government, British-style.

Wilson has for years been a firm opponent of the referendum notion, but he came out in support of the referendum amendment. And Roy Jenkins had had enough. He saw that if he swallowed that gnat, the anti-Europeans would soon find a camel — and get Harold Wilson to lead it.

WHATEVER Wilson's motives, he has managed to achieve catastrophe for himself and his party. Labor is split in two. It is rapidly moving toward outright opposition to the principle of Europe — a step likely to come at the party conference next fall, and to be even more wounding.

And of course there is now next to no chance of upsetting Heath. Some call him lucky. But on the European issue Heath has stuck to his beliefs despite many predictions of defeat in parliament and the country, so it is the luck of courage and principle. Until Labor has a leader with those qualities, it will remain a party without credibility, enfeebling the British political system.

making that doubly clear. While secretaries Rogers and Laird righteousnessly proclaim to Congress and the people that the bombings in the North are protecting American lives, "White House officials" and other unnamed sources explain to the press that the attacks really constitute a signal to the Soviets.

As this explanation goes, Nixon is only annoyed with the Soviets for giving material support to the North Vietnamese invasion; he wanted to tell them that he had no intention of altering his policy of supporting the Thieu regime; and he also wanted to arrive in Moscow for the forthcoming summit conference in a "position of strength," not merely as a leader whose ally was being invaded. So he bombed Hanoi and Haiphong and Rogers says that, short of nuclear weapons, no other attacks can be ruled out.

AND WHEN all of that is said and done, Americans still must recognize the means by which Nixon's face and political position are being saved, the method by which his signal is being sent to Moscow. All that is being done by raining down high explosives on human beings, not just on the battlefield but in distant cities. This war has gone on so long and so mindlessly and so cruelly that its perpetrators seem no longer to see it as a war, but as a gaming board; its bombs are merely signals to them and its deaths have nothing to do with life.

So although war may not yet be claimed as peace, what is the tactical difference in that and the new American doctrine that war brings peace? Not much.

To the editor

U.S. was first to break Geneva Vietnam accord

I am amazed to find this newspaper applauding President Nixon's escalation of the Vietnamese war as a step toward ending it! (Editorial April 18).

The Nixon administration has never taken a serious step toward ending the war. Nixon has never demonstrated a willingness to negotiate the real issue of this war, which is, who should rule in Saigon. On the contrary, his recent decision to escalate the bombing shows us that "Vietnamization" is a disguise for a permanent U.S. commitment to the corrupt Thieu regime and a search for an impossible military victory.

IF WE ARE to stop what this newspaper so accurately suggests is an inhumane war, the U.S. government must end its support for the Thieu regime, allow the peoples of Indochina to settle their own affairs and negotiate the return of American prisoners of war. Nixon's military policy, on the other hand, prolongs the war and risks losing more American lives and prisoners.

The Nixon administration's reluctance to end the war is revealed by its deliberate distortion of history in an attempt to justify the bombing escalation. American officials charge that the current offensive by North Vietnamese and NLF forces is a violation of the Geneva Agreements of 1954 and of a bombing halt "understanding" with the U.S. in 1968. These are gross distortions of fact and will only complicate political negotiations in the future. What is the truth?

AMERICAN presidents — not the North Vietnamese — have been tearing the Geneva Agreements apart for more than 15 years. The agreements called for the reunification of the temporary zones of Vietnam by an all-Vietnam election within two years of the signing. The U.S. supported Diem's refusal to even consult with the North Vietnamese on arrangements for holding such elections, fearing that it would result in a victory for Ho Chi Minh's government. Instead, the U.S. created the separate anti-communist state of South Vietnam, and attempted to exterminate all former guerrilla fighters left in the south. Both projects were strictly forbidden by the Geneva Agreements. The U.S. and Diem regime attempted to hide behind the argument that neither of them signed the agreements but the U.S. pledged at Geneva not to forcibly disturb their implementation. We violated that pledge.

It is difficult to bind North Vietnamese to agreements we have already violated when even our South Vietnamese allies renounce the agreements and claim Vietnam is one state, not two. When General Thieu was president of the military directorate, he declared: "The Geneva Agreements of 1954 have no validity and we do not recognize the seventeenth parallel as the line dividing the two southern and northern zones." (Saigon Daily News, July 21, 1965.) Under these circumstances it is difficult to accuse the North Vietnamese of "flagrant invasion" or "aggression." The DMZ is not a national boundary.

AS FOR THE so-called "1968 understanding," it is a matter of historical fact that North Vietnam has never pledged in public or in private to accept any conditions on the end of American bombing of the North. Johnson stopped the bombing and invited the Vietnamese to negotiate. (This they have been doing in good faith until the Nixon administration abruptly refused to participate in the talks in March, 1972.) Because the Vietnamese refused to acknowledge conditions on the bombing halt which had already taken place, U.S. officials began claiming there was a "tacit" understanding with Hanoi that they would refrain from attacking cities in exchange for the bombing halt. This "tacit" understanding was a propaganda ploy by the Nixon administration. Whenever we wanted to bomb the North, we accused Hanoi of violating this "tacit" non-existent agreement. This was the rationalization for Nixon's resumption of the bombing under the guise of "protective reaction."

THE NORTH Vietnamese and NLF offensive has exposed the bankruptcy of the Nixon administration's diplomatic and military posture. Let's not delude ourselves. The Vietnamese and American war in Indochina will not be ended until the U.S. government and the American people face political reality with more honesty than the Nixon administration has demonstrated. I would like to see this newspaper encourage its readers to exercise some healthy skepticism in its evaluation of the President's war policy.

Laura Summers
Rushford, Minn.

NOTE: The writer sounds like she owes her allegiance to North Vietnam and not the United States which is involved in this war only to aid a nation which tragically was exposed to brutal communist aggression. It may well be that it was a gross mistake that we became involved in it, but our motives were and are Christian pure. — W.F.W.

Many people still don't 'know' McGovern

Harris Survey

Although he has been the longest declared candidate in the race for President, only now are the American people beginning to make up their minds about Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota. Their impressions of McGovern are more positive than negative, but large numbers of voters, as many as four or five out of every ten, have not yet focused attention on him.

On the positive side, two qualities have come to dominate public thinking about the man:

- By 51-9 percent, a majority of Americans 18 years of age and over agree with the statement that McGovern "has the courage to say what he thinks, even if it is unpopular." Among young persons under 30, this admiration rises to 55 percent. Among the better informed, more affluent college-educated group it increases to 61 percent. Still, on an overall basis, a full 40 percent of the public is not yet able to answer such a question regarding McGovern one way or the other.

- By 41-19 percent, a cross section of voters believe that the South Dakota Senator "deserves a lot of credit for being against the Vietnam war before others were." Within the electorate, this sentiment increases among the young, the college educated, and independent voters. With the war now intensified in Vietnam, this issue, on which McGovern staked so much, has now returned as a front-and-center concern of large numbers of people and it is likely to help his candidacy at the polls.

BASED ON THE roughly one-half of the electorate who currently have a firm picture of Sen. McGovern, it is apparent that if he is to make his long way to winning the Democratic nomination, it will probably be on the basis of his stands on issues rather than his personality. Lately, he has been broadening his attention, for example, to the economic dissatisfactions of blue-collar workers. A larger than usual cross section of 2,973 households, interviewed between April 1 and 7, yielded these results in tests of the impact of the McGovern personality:

- By a 27-25 percent count, only a slim plurality of the public agrees that McGovern "has a sincere, appealing personality." Even among the young, the Senator's personality registers positively by only 31-22 percent. Among the key college educated, the Senator's personal appeal comes across negatively, 33-32 percent. The numbers who express no opinion on this question after extensive TV coverage of the early primaries is unusually high for this supposed era of political imagery.

Turning the question around, another slim plurality, 28-26 percent, concedes that McGovern "has a flat, uninteresting personality." Young people take exception to such a statement by only 33-24 percent. The important college-educated group agrees that McGovern lacks personal excitement by 34-33 percent.

It is perfectly apparent that George McGovern has not fired up the American electorate as a highly charismatic figure leading a new personality cult. Rather, McGovern would appear to have to make his mark by the force of his positions on the most urgent issues at the right time, helped along by the efficient organization he has proven he can put together in the precincts.

Paradoxically, the rather bland McGovern personality impact enables him to take more categorical positions with a certain amount of immunity. He can stake out positions which might cause a more charismatic figure real trouble and they will not seem as extreme, because he appears so unthreatening. The late Robert Kennedy, whose staff members have been supporting McGovern, suffered from a tendency to polarize voters.

ONE OF THE MCGOVERN'S problems has been that the rate of "don't know's" in his case sometimes runs two or three times higher than those for his principal rivals for the nomination, Humphrey and Muskie. But as he takes his stands to the people, he is becoming known as the left-of-center candidate. This point emerged when McGovern's position on the political spectrum was examined:

- By 29-20 percent, the public feels that the Senator has "too extreme, liberal views." Nearly every group in the electorate tends to feel this way except young people, who disagree by 33-26 percent. The college educated tend to be critical of McGovern for being overly liberal by a lesser 38-31 percent margin. Labor union members, on the other hand, are more concerned than the general public that McGovern is an "extremist," by 34-21 percent.

In surveys where McGovern has been pitted against President Nixon among all voters, the South Dakota Senator has fared poorly to date. On a "laundry list" of all prospective Democratic candidates, he also finishes far behind at this time. Part of the reason for this is that 40 to 50 percent of the voters simply have not yet formed any definite impression of him, and these come from the same groups least likely to turn out for primaries.

Yet with Vietnam once more heating up, McGovern cannot be taken lightly. The traditional challenge for the "out" candidate is to make the issues against the incumbent. In McGovern's case, the issue may, in the end, make the candidate.

The cross section of voting households was asked:

"I'd like to read you some statements some people have made about Senator George McGovern of South Dakota. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree."

	Agree %	Disagree %	Not Sure %
Positive
He has the courage to say what he thinks, even if it is unpopular. . . . 51		9	40

In an election held today, George McGovern, as the Democratic nominee, would have only an outside chance of winning against Richard Nixon. But the jury is still out on him, and his dominant issue, Vietnam, has yet to make its full political impact in 1972.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Six Navy chief petty officers will be assigned to the commandant of midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy to advise future junior officers on how to deal with enlisted men.

Capt. Phillip J. Ryan, deputy commandant, said their assignment was a result of the academy's constant evaluation of midshipmen training.

"We discovered that the whole area of enlisted relations was a void," he said. "In fact, about the only contact our midshipmen had with enlisted personnel was on the summer cruises and then not for a very extended period of time."

7 ways to wring every dime out of your telephone.

If you're using the phone improperly, you may be wasting more money every month than the recent rate increase amounts to on your bill. Here are some tips that will help you use the phone more efficiently. Most of them will save you time and money. Some of them will also save us time and money and that will help us give you more economical service in the long run.

1. Dial Station-to-Station and save.

Example: Dial station-to-station direct between Minneapolis and Duluth weekdays, it'll cost you 82¢ for 3 minutes. That's 18¢ less than the $1.00 rate for an operator-assisted call. On longer distance calls, today's dial-it-yourself rates are an even bigger bargain.

2. So you don't know the out-of-town number.

Without a thought, you dial "0" for some capable human help and ask the operator to get the number and place the long distance call for you, right? Right, and you're into an "operator-assisted" call. If you had simply dialed 1, then the area code, if different from your own, then 555-1212, you could get ol' Charlie's number in Cleveland yourself without charge and then you could dial it direct.

3. Don't make bad business out of a bad connection.

Suppose you get a wrong number, or you can't hear ol' Charlie in Cleveland! Now you should talk to the operator. After you mumble to yourself, and before you dial again, tell the operator you got a wrong number or a bad connection. You won't be charged.

4. You could still look it up.

On local calls, instead of dialing Directory Assistance, keep a record of the people and places you call most often. There's a place for them in every phone book. Just in Minnesota, we spend over $6.1 million a year looking up numbers, 70 percent of them already in the book. Naturally, you share that cost.

5. It pays to call when we're least busy.

On an in-state, direct-dialed station-to-station call after 5:00 P.M. evenings and all weekend, for instance, you can talk 10 minutes for $1.30 or less on the new Gopher State Bargain Rate. Or, if you call any evening during the "quiet hours" (between 11:00 P.M. and 7:00 A.M.) the Gopher State Bargain Rate gives you 20 minutes for $1.30 or less.

(Gopher State Bargain Rate does not apply 7:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. Monday thru Friday nor on legal holidays of Christmas, New Year's, Independence Day, Thanksgiving or Labor Day.)

6. Repair service.

The Telephone Company will repair your phone promptly without charge. Call as soon as you can so that you can get the maximum use at all times out of your telephone.

7. Plan before you install.

The installation charge is the same to have 1, or 3, or 6 phones put in . . . so long as you do it all at once. Add-as-you-go, piecemeal installations add up fast.

Abby pops the question

DEAR ABBY: About that male cook who "took pride" in his cooking and refused to divulge his recipes: Some of the worst cooks I've known were men who "took pride" in their cooking.

I don't claim to be a good cook, but I am probably the best corn popper in the state of Michigan. Admittedly, my prowess is not divinely inspired, but is the conglomerate of instructions from a local 65-year-old lady and a former national champion grower of corn.

I have taught many people how to make delicious popcorn, and I derive as much pleasure out of their enjoyment of it as I do my own. BILL IN COLDWATER

DEAR BILL: All right, you pop the corn and I'll pop the question: How about that recipe?

DEAR ABBY: You blew it when you stated that good cooks should share their recipes.

I happen to be the world's best dancer, salesman and amateur chef. And Abby, my love, no one, but NO ONE gets my recipe for spaghetti. (They also beg me for my recipe for sweet and sour sauce, and many others, but my spaghetti sauce is out of this world, and everybody who tastes it wants to know my secret.)

Thus far I have given it to no one. I'm not selfish. I like to cook, and I like to treat my guests to something they can't get anywhere else. Sorry about that.

BOB IN LONG BEACH

DEAR BOB: You may be the world's best dancer and amateur chef, but you blew it when you said you were the world's best salesman. My husband is. P. S.: I'll put my mother-in-law's sweet and sour sauce against yours any day, but Bob, old boy, about that spaghetti recipe: Are you willing to negotiate?

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about recipes? I used to share mine, too, but no more. Here's why: A few years ago I dreamed up a recipe of my own and it made such a big hit, my friends asked me for it, so I gave it to them.

Well, one fine day I saw that one of those "friends" had submitted MY recipe in a contest, taking full credit for having created it, and she won $25 for it!

When I spoke to her about it, she said when I gave it to her I forfeited all right to it.

In a more recent instance, a hairdresser asked me how I kept my skin so nice. When I told her it was my own formula, she wormed it out of me with a plea that she had "problems" with her skin and really had to know.

A year later, I found that this hairdresser had been making MY formula, putting it up in jars, and was selling it for a big price.

When I threatened her with a lawsuit she stopped, but since that incident, I have never given a recipe or anything else that hasn't been published in a magazine or newspaper that everyone has access to.

LEARNED A LESSON

DEAR LEARNED: If people write and ask me how they can get your miracle dry skin formula, what shall I tell them? To dry up?

DEAR ABBY: About that earth-shaking question of whether to give out a recipe or not, why the hassle? I agree with you, "If someone else enjoys the same thing you enjoy, it in no way diminishes your enjoyment of it!"

And if someone takes the recipe to her grave with her, who gains?

BIG-HEARTED BETTY

Before You Buy...

By Margaret Dana

Which ads are frauds?

Q. Could you please tell me where to write concerning the ads you see in the paper saying "Addressers needed, work at home..." etc. I'd like to know which ones are on the level.

A. Your best bet at present is to check the company in question with your nearest Better Business Bureau. There may be one in the city where you live or shop. If you do not know where the nearest BBB is located, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, marking it "BBB list," and I will send you a copy.

The BBB will not recommend any one company, but it will check its files to see what the reputation of any particular company is. If there have been complaints against it, or charges of fraud, the BBB will report this to you.

Q. I recently bought frankfurters and put them in the freezer for an emergency. The next day I decided to use them in a lunch casserole. We got food poisoning from them. The store told us I shouldn't have frozen them as they were vacuum-packed, and freezing broke open the package, causing the food spoilage. I have often frozen franks before and never had this happen. Even if it did, could that cause food poisoning?

A. The American Meat Institute does not recommend freezing cured and smoked meats, including frankfurters, because they deteriorate quickly in flavor when frozen — not because they spoil. But it does not seem reasonable that one night in a freezer could cause any type of deterioration — unless the frankfurters, when you bought them, were already spoiling. Somewhere along the way, between producer and store, they may not have been held at the proper temperature, or may have been contaminated in some other way. I do not see that it is possible to blame your freezing of the frankfurters for any actual spoilage.

Q. Could you give me any information on price controls as they affect goods now? I recently bought a bra of the type for which I have always paid $5. It is now $6. Is such a rise permitted? To whom can I go with a complaint?

A. Some adjustments in prices are being permitted where the seller can show justification in his own rising costs. Generally the Price Commission asks retailers to provide customers with information on price increases if they ask to see former price figures and compare them. Clothing prices have risen briskly since the end of the price freeze. Labor costs, transportation costs and rising taxes are among the factors manufacturers and retailers list as causes.

Q. We enjoy your column very much and have learned much from it. Now we have a question. Why is it that all potato chip bags at the supermarkets seem to be only half filled? Even the twin-packs are all half empty. Why?

A. Potato chips are sold by weight, and that weight must be on the label. If you weigh the contents and find it equals the declared weight on the package, then you can figure the apparent short fill of the bag was caused by another factor.

In filling the bags by machine, the fill must not be too crowded or tight, or the chips will break. But during transportation and shelf life they tend to settle down. To check for yourself if the original fill was to the top, or was skimmed, pour out all the chips on a clean towel, then pour them back. If the bag fills up, the original pack was O.K., and the contents have settled normally.

Q. My granddaughter, who lives in another state, tells me the home economist there says that it is not good to use pans with Teflon coating as they flake off into foods and are dangerous to one's health. Is this true?

A. A research report from the Association of Food and Drug Officials of the United States gives the reply that Teflon has been shown not to be a hazard either by the fumes given off if the lining inadvertently scorches, or by flakes if the lining peels off.

However, there can be a good deal of difference in the way Teflon linings behave, depending on whether they have been properly applied by the utensil manufacturer. Some imported pans coated with genuine Teflon have been badly processed and will not bear the "Certification Mark."

This is a label which reads: "DuPont Approved Finish." It means the lining has been properly applied to meet a definite DuPont standard. It is wise to look for this label in buying Teflon-coated articles.

Q. We are considering buying a vacuum cleaner which uses a container full of water to collect the dust rather than a dust bag. The salesman says this has more suction than other sweepers and if run 20 minutes a day could purely the air. He also claims it has health benefits for asthmatic people, and we have a child who has asthma. But the cleaner is very expensive. Can you give us any information?

A. I have checked with Underwriters' Laboratories, which tests products for safety, to see if the cleaner you mention by brand name is listed. One model from this company is so listed, meaning it has been approved for safety. But the particular model you mention is not there.

I suggest you look first for the UL label on the machine itself. As to its efficiency, or health benefits, I have no information.

(Margaret Dana welcomes questions and comments on buying. They should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Dana, care of the Winona Daily News, Winona, Minn.)

More than 700 attend ceremony at Ft. Snelling

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — More than 700 people turned out in cold, wet weather Sunday for the dedication of the Vietnam Memorial Carillon at Ft. Snelling Memorial Chapel.

The 50-bell instrument was dedicated to the more than 1,000 Minnesota servicemen who have been killed in the Vietnam War.

Officials said the carillon can be programmed to play automatically or can be played with a keyboard. The bells will ring out each hour of the day. Special selections will be played at noon and 6 p.m. and on Sunday mornings.

The chapel's original 10-bell system was installed in 1920 but broke several years ago. Money for the $20,000 carillon was contributed by more than 2,000 individuals and groups, officials said.

Blasts Transportation Dept., ICC

Mondale rips rail abandonment

REDWOOD FALLS, Minn. (AP) — Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., said today proposals from the Department of Transportation and the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) are designed to facilitate rail abandonment.

Mondale, testifying at an ICC hearing on a rail abandonment case, said the "abandonment of rural rail service is a sad replay of the deterioration of railroad passenger service — a few years ago." Rail business on the branch line inevitably decreases because of inadequate service and finally the line is abandoned, he said.

"Unfortunately, neither the Department of Transportation nor the Interstate Commerce Commission has made any real effort to solve this problem," Mondale said in remarks prepared for the hearing. "On the contrary, their proposals are designed to facilitate branch line abandonments."

Other speakers to testify included Gov. Wendell Anderson and Rep. John Zwach, R-Minn. They are opposed to a petition by the Chicago & North Western to abandon 8.2 miles of track between Wanda and Sanborn in Redwood County.

The hearing is scheduled to continue through Tuesday. Elmer Bergland of Minneapolis, state legislative director of the United Transportation Union (UTU), said between 300 and 400 witnesses may testify against the railroad's request.

Another ICC hearing will be held Thursday and Friday in Albert Lea on a proposal by the Milwaukee Road to abandon eight miles of track between Hollandale Junction and Rock Island Junction.

Prior to the hearing today,

Bergland said the future of many rural state communities hinges on the outcome of the proposed railroad track abandonments pending before the ICC.

"The ICC has asked for statements for protesting parties in several of these abandonment cases under a new modified procedure that usually rules out public hearings," he said. "This is a sad situation when the public is excluded from testifying in person."

Mondale said proposed track abandonments by railroads pose "a substantial threat to the prosperity and stability of rural America."

He noted that railroads are linked with the financial stability of those in grain marketing.

"Along with poor maintenance of roadbeds and track, shortages of boxcars are a perennial problem plaguing shippers of farm communities," Mondale said. "Grain elevators never seem to be able to obtain enough cars when they need them."

Mondale said the Congress must consider alternatives for keeping branch lines open and viable where there is a genuine need for a railroad. "I think we should consider the possibility of patterning the operation of rural railroad branch lines after the Rural Electrification program."

Cohen ranks as St. Paul favorite

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — About 100,000 St. Paul voters are expected to turn out Tuesday to elect a new mayor in Minnesota's second largest city.

Lawrence D. Cohen, 38, Ramsey County commissioner who led the field by a wide margin in the primary, ranks as a favorite over Robert J. Ferderer, 37, an independent running with Republican support.

Cohen has been active in the DFL party since his college days. He is a 1955 graduate of the University of Minnesota and received his law degree two years later.

Ferderer, advertising-sales promotion manager for Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co., is making his first try for public office.

The winner will succeed flamboyant Mayor Charley McCarty, who finished fourth in a four-man field in the March 14 primary. Also eliminated was former DFL Mayor Thomas Byrne, who decided not to seek re-election two years ago.

Almost 76,000 of St. Paul's 164,372 registered voters cast ballots in the primary. The general election turnout is expected to be swelled by the influx of 18-year-old voters.

Cohen is a former 4th District DFL chairman and was an unsuccessful candidate for a Minnesota House seat in 1964. He also is a founder of the Minnesota Environmental Control Citizens Association, a lobbying group interested in ecological issues.

Ferderer, a 1956 graduate of St. Thomas College, with a major in political science, served as deputy director of the Governor's Commission on Crime Prevention and Control during the LeVander administration.

The biggest issue in the campaign has been finances. Cohen released a list of his contributors on March 28 and criticized Ferderer for not doing so.

North Dakota Indian demands bring accord

FORT TOTTEN, N.D. (AP) — A 40-hour occupation of the Fort Totten Reservation jail by about 50 Indian protesters ended shortly before midnight Sunday when federal officials agreed to most of their demands, an Indian spokesman said.

Agreement was reached on other demands earlier in the day, but a demand of amnesty by the protesters forced additional talks.

Both sides finally agreed to a compromise that there would be no arrests Sunday night if the Indians left the building peacefully.

Harold O. Bullis, Fargo, U.S. attorney for North Dakota, said an investigation would be conducted and no charges filed if the probe showed the demonstration was peaceful.

Bureau of Indian Affairs officials and tribal leaders also refused a demand by protesters that Florence Joshua be recognized as the tribal chairman. Mrs. Joshua, a member of the protest group, was involved in a disputed election some time ago, which saw Louis Goodhouse win re-election.

But the protesters won a demand for an investigation by the Justice Department into three deaths at the jail in the past 10 months.

Other points in the agreement include setting up a human relations committee on the reservation; a police community relations committee; sensitivity training for police officers; no "arbitrary or indiscriminate" arrest of Indians; funding a reservation detoxification center, and no interference by BIA or tribal officials with tribal police.

Protesters failed to win a demand for preferential hiring of Indians at the Public Health Service hospital on the northeastern North Dakota reservation.

The protesters, both Sioux and Chippewas, took over the large one-story brick building about 5:30 a.m. Saturday, and immediately called for an investigation into the three deaths at the jail.

Two of the deaths were apparent suicides. In one, last June 5, a 17-year-old prisoner was beaten to death by two cellmates.

Authorities halted telephone and electrical service to the building, but other Indians brought lanterns, space heaters, and food to the protesters.

Five Wisconsin congressmen take trips abroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report published Friday by the Congressional Record lists five Wisconsin congressmen as having traveled abroad at taxpayer expense.

The accuracy of such expense accounts as compiled by the House Committee on Administration has been challenged by several congressmen.

The report said Republican Rep. Alvin O'Konski took a trip to Poland in August at government expense totaling $3,607.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., traveled to Poland in June for $1,427, the report said.

Other travelers and expenses were:

- Republican Rep. Vernon Riffe, $93 while serving as a delegate to a Mexican-U.S. governmental meeting.
- Democratic Rep. Henry Reuss, $2,921 for a trip to Singapore.
- Democratic Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, $1,726 for a trip to Europe.

Labor Committee appears ready to deal with strikes

By JOE HALL

ASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Labor Committee appears ready to approve legislation to deal with nationwide emergency strikes, but final Congressional action probably won't come this session.

Earlier in this Congress it seemed doubtful that committee, dominated by liberals, would approve any such legislation.

But the increasing annoyance of having to deal on a case-by-case basis with emergency strikes has changed the picture.

Last year Congress had to pass legislation to head off a nationwide rail shutdown. Early in this session it was called on to settle the West Coast dock strike.

The dock tieup particularly brought new support for establishment of some system to deal with emergency strikes on a permanent basis. This backing came from farm-state senators who saw their farmers suffering big losses as export shipments were blocked.

When the dock-strike legislation was before the Senate in February, Sen. Robert W. Packwood, R-Ore., sought to attach a permanent national emergency-strike provision as an amendment.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., D-N.J., the Labor Committee chairman, and Democratic leaders were able to beat the provision by only three votes.

Unless the committee acts by

May 19 to draft its bill on permanent machinery, Packwood says, he will bring up the issue again on the floor as an amendment to some pertinent bill.

Williams agreed that, if the committee fails to work out a bill by then, he will not ask for more time.

But, even if the panel approved a bill, it does not mean the legislation will be enacted or even pass the Senate this year. It could not get to the Senate floor before June.

Even if the Senate should approve a bill, chances for House action are slim. A House Commerce subcommittee has said it will take no action during this session.

Whatever solution is finally arrived at in the Senate Committee, it is not expected to include the key recommendation of President Nixon.

Nixon proposes, Packwood endorses and labor opposes a final-offer-selection plan which could bring a forced government settlement of an emergency strike in transportation industries.

Under it, the parties would have to submit final offers and a presidentially-appointed panel would select one which they would become the settlement.

JEEP TRAIL RIDE

Argentine suffers from low production of beef

WASHINGTON (AP) — When U.S. consumers are tempted to complain about retail beef prices, they might consider what has happened in Argentina, traditionally one of the world's biggest beef eaters.

In 1971, the Agriculture Department said today, beef production in Argentina slumped to 4.5 billion pounds, a 21 percent reduction from the previous year.

The setback, partly as result of heavy slaughter of steers and heifers in 1969 and early 1970, brought meat rationing in the form of a ban on retail beef sales during alternate weeks at one point last year.

Per capita beef eating dropped to 146 pounds for Argentine consumers last year, down from 185 the year before.

On a comparable basis, the United States produced 21.7 billion pounds of beef last year for a per capita consumption of around 113 pounds.

If the same kind of slump had occurred in the United States—a one-fifth drop from 1970—Americans would have had only 90 pounds of beef apiece last year. Those weights, incidentally, are based on wholesale carcass equivalents, not the actual amount of beef sold at retail.

As a result of the shortage, the Foreign Agricultural Service said in a weekly report, Argentine cattle producers have been getting some of the highest prices on record in that country.

By last January, the report said, the cattlemen were getting about $19.10 per 100 pounds of live weight of animal. More recently, the price has leveled off to about $17, the report said. But two years ago the average was $9.50 per hundredweight, a typical price for live cattle in Argentina for some years.

Nelson to meet with Navy on Sanguine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., says he is to meet this week with the chief of naval operations about Project Sanguine, a northern Wisconsin radio project being fought by environmentalists.

Nelson and other congressmen said Saturday they had received no confirmation that the Navy is abandoning the Wisconsin ecological debate and plans to build the radio antenna in Texas.

Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr. asked for a meeting to discuss the matter, Nelson said.

The Navy has spent about $50 million on Sanguine research and is asking Congress for more planning funds. Estimates of the project's total cost have ranged to $1.5 billion.

The Navy says an underground antenna, anchored to northern Wisconsin bedrock, could improve coded communications to submarines.

Scientists question whether the system could work without producing hazardous electrical currents, disrupting wildlife and demanding tremendous power from pollution-producing generating stations.

Nelson said he will oppose the project no matter where the Navy tries to build it.

"I don't think the Navy has made a case for it," the senator said. "I'm still not convinced the project is needed, and a number of distinguished scientists have questioned whether Sanguine will work at all."

Rep. Alvin O'Konski, a northern Wisconsin Republican, said "irresponsible opposition" to Sanguine has possibly persuaded the Navy to build the antenna grid in Texas.

Several states have been included in site studies. The Navy insists the Wisconsin bedrock offers the best location.

Also voicing opposition to Sanguine was Rep. David Obey, a northern Wisconsin Democrat who may face re-election against O'Konski in November. Their districts were merged by recent reapportionment.

"I am certainly not ready to concede the system ought to be built at all, whether in Wisconsin or anywhere else," Obey said.

Texas congressmen reported they had no confirmation of a Sanguine move to their state.

Among them is Rep. O. Clark Fisher, whose district is involved in the Texas site studies.

Aides to Texas' two U.S. senators said the latest word they have is that a Navy announcement on a Texas site wouldn't be made for several months.

Yugoslav back in homeland

BIJELJINA, Yugoslavia (AP) — The frightening 33-year odyssey of Mehmed Alija Dubravcevic has ended. He still says the United States is a fine country but thinks his Yugoslav home is "the best place in the world."

Dubravcevic returned to his native town a week ago after the citizens of Eau Claire, Wis., put up $300 toward his $400 plane ticket.

Most of Bijeljina, 65 miles west of Belgrade, turned out to make Dubravcevic's homecoming the biggest social event of the year.

His 86-year-old mother, Rajbija, was waiting in her two-room mud and brick house. Dubravcevic, 47, sat down on the sofa, took her on his lap and said in a whisper: "Is this my mother? Is this my mother?"

A neighbor who helps the mother with housework commented: "You know, we women cry often, but without too many tears. He cried like a man cries. It was a stream after stream down his cheeks as he held his mother in his lap in one hand, and a handkerchief in the other."

Records show Dubravcevic was captured by Nazi troops who occupied Bijeljina in 1944 and held in a concentration camp until May 1945.

But Dubravcevic denies he was captured. He says he went to Austria in 1939 to work as a janitor and wound up in a displaced persons camp after the war. A displaced persons committee sent him first to Mexico, then to a farm in Wisconsin.

Farm records indicate he became lonesome over the lack of contact with his countrymen. He went to Milwaukee where a Serbian priest tried to find him a job. However, Milwaukee police found him wandering the streets and he was admitted to a hospital.

Doctors sent him to Winnebago State Hospital, then, in 1955, to the Eau Claire County mental hospital, where he was given a job on a nearby private dairy farm and accumulated $325.

Not until 1971 did the hospital locate someone who could speak Serbian and who could communicate adequately with Dubravcevic.

Hospital Superintendent James Schmiedlin said Dubravcevic promptly responded to the idea of returning to Yugoslavia and the hospital got in touch with Dubravcevic's mother.

Schmiedlin said staff members still are puzzled by the man's admission in the first place.

"It's the kind of thing that used to happen frequently," he said. "I guess that is why his being here was never questioned."

Back home now, Dubravcevic is quiet, listening to American pop songs on his mother's transistor radio.

On Sunday, his mother took him to a neighbor's house, where they watched an episode from Peyton Place. Dubravcevic's eyes brightened as he heard the familiar American dialogue.

Dubravcevic has no immediate plans, but his mother said she is determined to get him married after he gets a job.

"There's no hurry," she added quickly. "I want him to myself for awhile."

Assemblymen to explore charge account penalties

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A special session which Wisconsin legislators had hoped to conclude last week is not dead. It is still alive, primarily because of efforts to help merchants handle charge-account penalties.

The Senate adopted a usury modification bill Friday and adjourned, the Assembly bogged down in debate over the issue before approving a compromise measure.

The Constitution prevents one house from adjourning without the consent of the other, and the Assembly has directed senators to return for a vote on the compromise revisions.

The Assembly's majority leader, Democratic Rep. Anthony Earl of Wausau, said assemblymen would return Tuesday for a skeletal session, and would remain until senators finish work.

The Senate majority leader, Republican Ernest Keppeler of Sheboygan, said the extra session "should not last more than an hour."

Differences between the Senate and Assembly versions of the usury modification bill are minor, and senators can be expected to concur with assemblymen, Keppeler said.

The measure eventually was

The State Supreme Court ruled in 1970 that merchants were not allowed by law to charge more than 12 per cent interest annually on revolving charge accounts.

Some who had been charging up to 18 per cent face a costly requirement under existing statutes of reimbursing all overcharged customers.

The usury bill debated by the legislature in the special session would rescue merchants from mass reimbursement, requiring repayment only to those customers who ask for it prior to March 1, 1973.

Sponsors of the bill said it could save many merchants from potential bankruptcy. Opponents called it favoritism for banks and department stores.

Ironically, the legislature's recently adopted Consumer Credit Protection Bill contains a clause under which merchants will be able next year to resume charging 18 per cent on credit of up to $500.

Opponents of the bill which modifies reimbursement requirements sponsored an eight-hour filibuster Friday, forcing the Assembly past its adjournment deadline and into a Saturday debate session.

approved 58-25.

It would help courts decide whether class actions for reimbursement should be continued. The Supreme Court is to rule next month on the class-action aspect.

Existing laws allow overcharged patrons to collect principle as well as the extra interest. The bill would limit reimbursement to interest sums.

Editor sees erosion of press freedom

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The managing editor of the Chicago Sun-Times said Saturday night he foresees the erosion of the press' freedom under the "Nixon Supreme Court."

Ralph Otwell, in an address to a regional meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic society, said, "It will be the new Nixon court that in essence will determine how we gather what we print and broadcast, because fact-finding is exactly what is under attack when the power of subpoena is used to reveal and jeopardize our sources and silence them."

Rule threatened by conservatives

Brandt suffers two setbacks

By ANTHONY COLLINGS
BONN (AP) — Battered by two political setbacks, Chancellor Willy Brandt's rule was threatened today by conservatives who hinted they might let his treaties with Moscow and Warsaw go through while hitting Brandt on domestic issues.

Brandt, leader of the Social Democrats, lost an important state election Sunday and the same night a government supporter in Parliament defected to the Christian Democrats. This reduced Brandt's strength in the lower house, the Bundestag, to 249 Socialists and members of the small Free

Democratic party, the minimum needed by his coalition government to stay in power.

But the opposition Christian Democrats, winner of the election in Baden-Wuerttemberg, hinted at a change in tactics that could save Brandt's policy of East-West relaxation while hitting the government on domestic issues.

The Baden-Wuerttemberg win continued the Christian Democrats' control of the upper house of the federal parliament, the Bundesrat, in which the states are represented. The conservatives indicated they might not use this advantage to hinder passage of Brandt's treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland if they survive a ratification vote May 4 in the Bundestag.

The treaties confirm German territorial losses in World War II. The conservatives argue that Brandt, a Social Democrat, received too little in return for this from Moscow and Warsaw.

The defecting lawmaker was Wilhelm Helms, who resigned from the Free Democrats. However, he left open the possibility he would vote for the treaties while siding with the opposition on internal issues.

In the Baden-Wuerttemberg election, Brandt's Social Democrats raised their percentage of the total vote from 29 per cent in 1968 local elections to 37.5 per cent.

But it was not enough to take over the state government with the Free Democrats, who slipped from 14.4 to 8.9 per cent of the vote. Together, they will occupy 55 seats in the Stuttgart state parliament against the 65 seats of the Christian Democrats, who polled 53 per cent.

The Christian Democrats had 60 seats and 44.2 per cent in 1968. Voter turnout was 80 per cent.

Mental disorder—few families escape touch

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing government statistics, a National Institute of Mental Health psychologist said today there is growing evidence that "almost no family in the nation is entirely free of mental disorders."

And, Dr. David Rosenthal suggested that the incidence of mental disorders may figure prominently among the causes of the country's social turbulence and disorders, including crime and racial unrest.

Based on a 1967 institute survey, which Rosenthal said contains the latest figures, he concluded possibly 60 million Americans are borderline schizophrenics or exhibit other deviant mental behavior in the schizophrenic category.

"Indeed," Rosenthal said in a report to the National Academy of Sciences, "it may very well be that the so-called 'normal' person, with respect to mental health, does not represent a norm at all, but rather an ideal—relatively rare—that most of us would like to achieve."

Rosenthal said there are more than 1.75 million schizophrenic or potentially schizophrenic persons walking the streets besides at least 500,000 in hospitals. Schizophrenia, one of the major mental illnesses, includes a tendency to withdraw from reality and often in-

Area officials attend seminar

INDEPENDENCE, Wis. — David Steenson, psychiatric social worker, and Ray Seiler, alcoholism counselor, West Central Community Mental Health Center, recently attended a one-day seminar in Madison, Wis., sponsored by the Wisconsin Association on Alcoholism and Other Drug Abuse and the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services, Division of Mental Hygiene.

The seminar was designed for directors and coordinators of information and referral centers, mental health centers, and other agencies working in the field of chemical dependency, and dealt specifically in the area of working effectively with the news media.

CASTING HIS VOTE . . . French President Georges Pompidou casts his ballot at Orville's townhall, west of Paris, Sunday on the referendum for ratification of the treaty admitting Great Britain, Norway, Ireland and Denmark into the Common Market. Behind him is Mme. Pompidou. (AP Photofax).

French welcome Britain into Common Market

PARIS (AP) — Frenchmen voting in a politically-freighted referendum Sunday welcomed Britain into the Common Market, but the reduced turnout raised opposition hopes of cutting sharply into the Gaullist majority in the National Assembly elections next year.

Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin announced that 39.64 per cent of the 29,312,637 registered voters stayed away from the polls Sunday, 33.17 per cent favored the enlargement of the West European trade bloc, 17.12 per cent voted no, and 7.07 per cent cast blank ballots.

The yes-no vote was 10,001,645 to 5,020,683.

By comparison, abstentions on the referendum in which former French President Charles de Gaulle once appealed to the voters ran about 20 per cent.

The pro-Market Socialists, who had called for abstention as a repudiation of President Georges Pompidou, and the communists, who advocated a no vote, were jubilant over the outcome.

Officially, the referendum asked approval of the treaty admitting Britain, Ireland, Norway and Denmark into the European Economic Community, now made up of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

There was no endangering opposition to British membership in the market. But Pompidou, in two radio-television addresses, claimed he needed overwhelming endorsement of the treaty to strengthen his hand in future negotiations to widen the trade bloc's operations into political and monetary fields.

The president's opponents charged he was trying to build up his image, not for purposes of negotiating abroad but to strengthen his position at home.

But Pompidou failed to arouse enthusiasm among the voters, who are traditionally apathetic toward foreign policy questions. And although he campaigned personally, he did not threaten to resign as De Gaulle did in the five referenda he staged.

BLIND SORTS SILVER

CHICAGO (AP) — Barry Brooks still is bucking the line despite blindness.

Brooks was a promising young football player in 1959 when he received an injury that led to blindness.

But misfortune hasn't deterred him from leading a normal family life.

Along with John McDonald, another blind man, Brooks daily sorts silverware in a 706-room motor hotel where he has been employed since 1967.

He is looking forward to the day when he can return to school.

House of the week

Seems large but has modest living area

By ANDY LANG
The modest habitable area of this one-story house has been effectively combined with an exterior that gives the appearance of bigness. Such a combination will be welcomed by the segment of the home-buying public that wants its houses to appear larger than they are.

Economy was a factor considered by architect Samuel Paul in the design. With only 1,383 square feet of livable area, the house nevertheless stretches nearly 71' across the front.

The covered entrance porch, with its arched motif, features the front facade. Along with the vertical siding and large sheltered window, this gives further emphasis to the entrance.

IN ADDITION to the featured porch, the combination of brick, vertical siding and mullioned windows gives the house an intimate character.
As you enter the house from the covered porch, there is a vestibule space defined by a closet on the left and a space divider on the right which can also be used as a planter. The spacious living room — 23' 8" by 15' 4" — merges with the entry and adjoins the dining room.

The square dining room has quick access to a huge rear patio through sliding glass doors. In the adjoining modern kitchen is an L-shaped arrangement of counters and appliances.
A good-sized mud room, off the kitchen, contains the laundry equipment such as clothes washer and dryer as well as a sink for the children to wash. A pantry and a clothes closet are included in this area.

TO THE left of the living room is the hall leading to the three bedrooms. The master bedroom has a wall of closets and direct access to its own private bathroom. A second bathroom at the end of the hall serves the other two bedrooms.

MONEY TALKS TO SOME
A recent marketing survey has divided potential homebuyers into two basic types: the depression or pre-World War II babies, and the bomb (or post-war) babies. To attract the first, builders are advised to "talk" cost, because money is important to people who grew up during the depression. Bomb babies, reared in affluent times, are more likely to respond to time- and work-saving features.

On the house

Backyard swim pools continue to be popular

By ANDY LANG
What are loosely called backyard swimming pools continue to grow in popularity.
They range from small above-the-ground pools of various types to luxurious in-the-ground installations that often are as much status symbols and eye-catchers as places to swim.

How do you go about buying a pool? I've never bought one, so my knowledge of the subject is limited. I decided to look up an old friend, Buster Crabbe, of swimming and movie fame.

Not necessarily because he won an Olympic gold medal way back when. And certainly not because he once portrayed Tarzan in films. But because for the past 16 years, as executive director of Cascade Industries, he has been associated with the sale and installation of home swimming pools.

As fast with words as he still is in the water, Buster gave this advice to potential pool buyers:

"First, decide what use your pool will be put to. If it's mostly for smaller children and a temporary investment, an above-ground pool will do. But if it's planned for the whole family for full swimming, as well as poolside social living, I advise the permanent investment of an in-ground type.
"Locate the pool in a sunny spot where there's also natural shelter from the wind, or add a windbreak fence or shrubbery. Family pools should be convenient to the house and easy to keep an eye on from one or more windows. The most common sizes are 16 by 32 or 20 by 40, but allow about 36 square feet per swimmer. Depths should run from 3 feet at the shallow end to 5½ to 9 feet at the deep end.

"In today's modern pool, you can get almost any shape, whether in poured concrete or gunite, which is sprayed concrete, or in the prefabricated vinyl liner type. The vinyl liner never needs painting and should carry a warranty of at least 10 years.

"The key to the final product you get in a pool is your builder. Check out how long he has been in business, make sure his product is covered by guarantees and be sure he will service the pool after it is built. And, very important, talk with owners of pools he has built. They will tell you the truth.

There are certain things to check out with your builder. Find out about taxes, zoning and any local regulations. The site should be free of rock-blasting adds expense—or ground water, since sealing this off costs extra. Be sure the pool has an adequate wide-mouthed skimmer, an efficient filter and automatic chemical feeding. Consider putting in a heater when you build; it costs less to install then and, in most locations, will add two or three months to the swimming season.

"And remember, no matter what your age, swimming is the best and healthiest form of exercise."

Warriors sweep Morris, still unbeaten in NIC

Three Brewer hurlers combine for 3-0 shutout

By MIKE O'BRIEN
MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers have cashed the first big dividend on last fall's 10-player trade with Boston, and a secondary swap with the Chicago Cubs isn't looking bad either.

George Scott and Billy Conigliaro, two of the six men obtained from the Red Sox, provided the power while Jim Slaton, Earl Stephenson and Ken Sanders teamed to pitch an eight-hit shutout as the Brewers posted their first County Stadium victory of the year, 3-0 over the Detroit Tigers.

Cap Day helped attract 10,031 fans in overcast mid-40s weather following a turnout of 8,968, smallest opening day crowd in the city's major league history, for Saturday's 8-2 defeat.

Scott, who had one hit in 17 previous trips to the plate, staked Slaton to a 2-0 lead with a line shot off the left center field wall to score Ron Theobald and John Briggs, who had walked to open the Brewer fourth.

Conigliaro provided the final run in the sixth with a 300-foot home run into the left field stands, his first hit in nine at-bats this year.

Slaton (1-1) picked up the victory after allowing five hits and three walks but no runs in five innings. It was the relief work of Stephenson and Sanders, however, that seemed to please manager Dave Bristol most.

Stephenson, 24, allowed just three hits in 3 1/3 innings and showed Bristol he might be the answer to the search for a left-hander to complement Sanders and Frank Linzy in the bullpen.

Stephenson, picked up from the Cubs in the deal for Jose Cardenal, used his sinker to induce eight Tigers to slap the ball into the dirt. The Brewers converted two of the grounders into double plays.

"I've had confidence in our staff all spring," Bristol said. "Stephenson pitched good in New York the other day, and this was really helpful today."

Stephenson was removed after a pinch single by Al Kaline and a walk to Tony Taylor with one out in the Detroit ninth. Sanders retired Aurelio Rodriguez on strikes and Gates Brown on an infield out.

Pitching Coach Wes Stock said Stephenson needs only to overcome inexperience and nervousness.

"He's got a natural sinker but he's got to turn the ball over," Stock said. "Sometimes he tries to throw it harder than he's capable of and it won't sink properly."

"I wanted to throw the double play ball to Taylor but I was concentrating too much," Stephenson said. "I knew I was throwing too hard. Sometimes you just get kind of cocky."

Scott and Conigliaro, both well aware the Brewers are counting on them to lend sock to the worst hitting lineup in baseball a year ago, said their hits would help ease the pressure.

"The fans are great here and it's a friendly atmosphere, and I was more relaxed after I hit that ball," Conigliaro said. "I swung good and it felt good. If I had got a hit off the end of the bat, I still wouldn't be happy because it would mean I'm still not swinging good."

Scott said he, as a free swinger, was hurt more than the slap batters by the players strike and other interruptions.

"It's tough as a power hitter to play one day, sit down the next two and then try to play again. When we get in 10 or 12 straight games, I feel we'll be on our way," he said.

The Brewers managed only

Krinke, Brecht shine on mound

By BRUCE CLOSWAY
Daily News Sports Writer

It would seem that winning streaks are becoming "old hat" to Winona State's baseball team judging from the nonchalant manner in which the Warriors disposed of the University of Minnesota-Morris in both games of a twin bill Sunday afternoon at Gabrych Park.

Coach Gary Grob's squad that established an all-time school record with 15 straight victories last season, reeled off its ninth and tenth wins in succession by clipping Morris 5-1 and 5-0 and completed a sweep of a weekend series that was delayed one day by Friday's rain.

Steve Krinke and Terry Brecht continued their mastery on the mound for the host team, and neither hurler was charged with an earned run in the doubleheader. Krinke, a senior southpaw, fired a three-hitter in the opener, and Brecht, a junior transfer from Keokuk (Iowa) Junior College, relinquished just five hits in the nightcap in making his first start of the season.

THE VICTORIES gave the Warriors a perfect 6-0 mark in the Northern Intercollegiate Conference and a 10-1 slate overall. The only blemish on Winona's record thus far was a 4-3 setback against St. Louis University in a rain-shortened five-inning affair back on March 31 after the Warriors had gone in front in the top of the sixth.

A scheduled doubleheader between Winona and the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point today in Stevens Point has been switched to May 7 because of wet grounds.

But weather permitting, the Warriors will host Loras College of Dubuque, Iowa, in a twin bill at Gabrych Park beginning at noon Tuesday. The games have to be considered a grudge match for Winona because Loras was one of the teams that helped eliminate the Warriors in last year's NAIA region tournament at St. Joseph, Mo.

Krinke had a no-hitter going for five and two-thirds innings in Sunday's first game. But Ron Evjen, Winona's dependable junior shortstop, threw wide of first base after handling Scott Backer's routine grounder with two gone in the top of the sixth.

RON RAASCH, a burly left-handed batter for the Cougars, stepped up and dumped a sinking liner over third base for the initial hit off Krinke. Backer was awarded second when Evjen's throw went into the visitors' dugout, and scored on the opposite-field hit by Raasch.

Evjen provided a clutch single back in the third inning to get the home team on the scoreboard. Brecht, who played four innings in left field in the opener, got things started by drawing a walk against Robby Olson, the "ace" of the Cougars' staff.

McNary followed Brecht to the plate and ripped a sharp single down the rightfield line cording his third win against one defeat.

Winona managed to collect just four hits in the nightcap, but two of them were home runs Ross and Youngbauer. Ross tagged his second round-tripper of the season with one out in the third off loser Zev Polzer, and Youngbauer notched his initial clout of the year leading off the sixth.

Doug Sauer, making his first start in a Warrior uniform, came through with a line single to center in the bottom of the second to drive in Youngbauer with the first run off Polzer. Halvorson, who had walked, and Sauer, moved around to second and third as the throw went in to the plate.

Brecht then smacked a hard grounder that skipped right between the legs of the Cougars' shortstop, Tom Bergner, permitting both runners to score.

The biggest threat for Morris in the second game came in the top of the second inning following a leadoff double by Backer. He went to third when Brecht threw into centerfield on a pick-off attempt, but Halvorson helped bail his battery mate out of the jam by firing a strike to Ross catching Backer off third.

Brecht's shutout was the fourth of the season for the Warriors' mound staff. The hard-throwing rightlander fanned eight and gave up three walks.

In the only other NIC action over the weekend, Southwest State took two out of three from Moorhead State on Saturday.

Rangers oust Chicago 6-2, in Cup finals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ty to meet the Rangers in the Cup finals, again dominated the game against St. Louis. The scores of the first two games were 6-1 and 10-2, and the Bruins did not let up Sunday.

Johnny McKenzie and Mike Walton each scored twice for Boston, which got single goals from Phil Esposito, Ken Hodge and Eddie Westfall. St. Louis' goals came from Mike Murphy and Gary Sabourin.

The "Cup" is, of course, the Stanley Cup. It is the prize the Rangers are thinking about following their National Hockey League semifinal sweep of the Chicago Black Hawks, including a 6-2 victory Sunday night.

The Rangers haven't been in the Stanley Cup finals since 1950 and haven't won the Cup since 1940. It's the opportunity the players have been waiting for.

"I can't feel any better than I do right now," said Rod Gilbert, who, along with Hadfield and Bobby Rousseau, starred in Sunday's fourth victory.

The Rangers fell behind 1-0 early as Bobby Hull put his shot past Ranger goalie Gilles Villeneuve. New York retaliated quickly on scores by Phil Goyette and Rousseau.

Chicago scored again on a Pat Stapleton shot in the second period but the Rangers' attack surged again on goals by Hadfield and rookie Gene Carr. Gilbert and Rousseau added the final goals.

In home opener Darwin, Blyleven shine in Twins' win

By PAT THOMPSON

ST. PAUL (AP) — With 29-year-old rookie Bob Darwin belting the home runs and 21-year-old veteran Bert Blyleven firing strikes, the Minnesota Twins intend to give the Oakland A's some things to think about in 1972.

Darwin slammed his fourth homer in five games—three coming against Oakland pitching—and Blyleven tossed a three-hitter as the Twins romped to an 8-4 victory.

"We'd like to have them thinking about us a little more this season," said Bill Rigney, Twins' manager. "I'd like to beat that club and score a lot of runs against them all year."

The A's, now 1-2 against the Twins, unseated Minnesota as defending West Division champions in 1971 with a runaway pennant. The Twins finished fifth.

Darwin, now hitting .500 with 10 runs batted in through five games, has carried the Twins to a half-game of the A's and the West lead, although Oakland Manager Dick Williams said his pitchers should be able to shackle Darwin.

"We know where to pitch him," said Williams. "It's just a matter of locating it properly. He caught a hanging breaking ball. We should be all right the next time we face him. He's strong. And you can't make any mistakes against him."

Ken Holtzman did make a mistake, hanging a curve that Darwin drove 363 feet into the left field seats after Harmon Killebrew singled to lead off the second inning. Darwin, just missing a second homer with a drive to the warning track for a long out, also beat out a scratch single.

"I hit the home run right off the end of my bat," said Darwin. "I get too anxious, see the ball and I want to swing too soon because I know I'm going to hit it and darn near miss it."

Darwin started his pitching career in 1962. In 1970 after four major league pitching appearances with a 10.29 earned run average, he switched to the outfield.

The Twins obtained him from the Los Angeles Dodgers in an off-season trade, and Darwin won the center field job in spring training.

"He's not going to give up easily," said Rigney. "It took him too long to get where he is."

Blyleven yielded a first inning, bases-empty homer to Reggie Jackson, then coasted to his second victory without defeat as the Twins built an 8-1 lead. Dick Green's two-run triple and Curt Blefary's sacrifice fly rounded out the Oakland scoring.

Blyleven, in his third major league season, yielded only one walk and retired 14 straight in one stretch.

"My fastball was working a lot better than in the first two games," said Blyleven. "I was coming over the top with it better. I was down too much the last two games. It felt much better."

Bobby Mitchell upsets Nicklaus

By BOB GREEN

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — "The invisible man came through," chortled Bobby Mitchell.

The obscure Mitchell, who had complained earlier in the week that sports writers "seem to think I'm invisible—nobody ever writes about me," had just beaten pro golf's most feared competitor in a sudden-death playoff for the title in the prestigious Tournament of Champions.

The 29-year-old Mitchell rolled in a 20-foot putt on the first extra hole Sunday and beat heavily favored Jack Nicklaus for only his second victory in a pro career that dates back to the time he was a youth of 15 in Danville, Va.

"It's a great feeling," exclaimed Mitchell, who collected $33,000 from the total purse of $165,000. "It was a wonderful feeling when I won at Cleveland last year (his first tour triumph). But this was even better because I beat all the champs."

The Tournament of Champions is restricted to players who scored regular pro tour victories in the last 12 months. The awesome Nicklaus, who took the Masters and two other titles already this season, was a 4-1 favorite to successfully defend his title here.

But the odds went for nothing when Nicklaus pulled his tee shot on the par three 14th—the first playoff hole—into the deep rough and chipped six feet past.

Mitchell put his tee shot in the green below the pin and made the putt.

Knicks finish off Boston in 5 games

By HARRY EISENBERG

BOSTON (AP) — "We didn't panic," explained New York Knick forward Dave DeBusschere, "and that was the ball game."

Not only was it the ball game, but it also was the series.

The Knicks moved into the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs Sunday after overcoming a 14-0 deficit and defeating the Boston Celtics 111-103, taking the Eastern Conference championship 4-1.

The Knicks will open the best-of-seven title series in Los Angeles Wednesday against the Western Conference champion Lakers.

"We had patience," said DeBusschere, who led the balanced New York attack with 24 points while grabbing 11 rebounds. "A lesser team at that point might have panicked. We pecked away, came back, and before you knew it we were within four or five points. Once we got there, we're back in the game."

The Celtics roared off to a 14-0 lead with 3:34 gone and looked like they were about to run the Knicks out of Boston Garden. New York did not get on the scoreboard until 3:45 when Bill Bradley scored on a lay-up. The Knicks fought back, however, thanks mostly to eight points by Jerry Lucas, and trailed only 27-23 at the end of the quarter.

"We just couldn't seem to get off the ground," said New York coach Red Holzman.

The Knicks, who played all but the first 1:46 of the second period without DeBusschere, who picked up his third personal foul, tied the game at 34-34 with 7:38 remaining in the half. The lead switched hands five times before the Celtics took over and moved out to a 55-50 advantage at intermission.

In the third quarter, however, DeBusschere took over, despite an early fourth personal foul, and scored 18 of his 24 points as the Knicks moved out to an 83-79 advantage.

Astros stun Giants with 10 runs in 9th

By BRUCE LOWITT
"I'll take a four-run lead entering the ninth inning any time," San Francisco Manager Charlie Fox said.

The Giants had it Sunday—a 7-3 edge over Houston with three outs to go. But they couldn't get those final three before the Astros got 10 runs.

"I'm not surprised by all the runs Houston is scoring," Fox said after the Astros' 13-7 triumph. "They're the most improved club in the league. We scored seven runs so it's up to our pitchers to hold 'em."

In Sunday's National League action, the New York Mets swept a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs 8-2 and 7-6 in 12 innings; St. Louis handed Montreal its first defeat 6-1; and, in a pair of 11-inning games, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 5-4 and Atlanta overhauled Cincinnati 4-3.

Lee May highlighted the Astros' rally with a three-run homer that put Houston ahead 8-7. "That's more hits than I get in a week," he said of the eighth-inning, ninth-inning against three San Francisco hurlers.

Successive home runs in the fifth inning by Cleon Jones and Jim Fregosi carried the Mets to their opening-game triumph, and Jim Beauchamp's pinch single drove in the winning run in the extra-inning nightcap.

The Expos, the only undefeated club in the majors going into their game, were stopped by Scipio Spinks.

The tall right-hander scattered five Montreal hits while his St. Louis batterymate, Ted Simmons, gave him all the runs needed with a two-run single in the ninth inning.

Clay Kirby went the route for the Padres, scattering six hits to end the Dodgers' six-game winning streak. Derrel Thomas gave him the winning run with a tie-breaking bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the eighth inning.

Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski's fielding lapse helped Pittsburgh go ahead; then he beat the Pirates with his bat.

In the top of the ninth, with the Phils leading 3-2, Luzinski misplayed Richie Hebner's fly ball to left field, allowing it to drop for a double that enabled Pittsburgh to score a pair of runs.

But in the bottom of the ninth, he atoned for his misplay, unloading a towering homer that tied the score 4-4.

And in the 11th, he slammed a triple, then raced home with the winning run on pinch-hitter Tommy Hutton's two-out single.

In Atlanta, the Braves also gave, then took back, allowing the Reds to score a pair of runs in the top of the 11th, then charging back for three in the bottom of the inning.

Hank Aaron's second homer of the season and 641st of his career brought the Braves an eighth-inning 1-1 tie and Darrell Evans' solo shot with two out in the 11th started them back toward victory.

Bettenhausen captures Trenton 200

TRENTON (AP) — Gary Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., drove his Roger Penske-Sunoco McLaren to victory Sunday in the Trenton 200, setting a track record in the process.

He roared around the mile-and-a-half track at an average speed of 146.211 miles per hour, leaving a field of 23, including the so-called "Superman" and "Superteam" in the dust.

Robert McCloskey was second by four laps and Gordon Johncock finished third.

Bettenhausen, who because of the victory is the leading driver in the point standings, will race again next month in the Indianapolis 500.

"I didn't know how well I could run until the race was half over," Bettenhausen said. He took the lead on the 49th lap and held it for the remaining 85.

Bettenhausen picked up $10,000 for the win out of a total purse of $75,000. His third career victory came before a crowd of 23,500. It was the first time in the track's history that two generations of the same family won a major race.

The late Tony Bettenhausen, his father, won at Trenton in 1959 in a 100-mile championship race when the track was still a one-mile oval.

In the time trials, Bobby Unser of Albuquerque set a one-lap track record of 165.289 m.p.h.

Only 12 of the 24 starters were still running when the checkered flag dropped for Bettenhausen. And only one of the highly touted "superteam" cars was still operating—Joe Leonard's.

Leonard's teammates, Al Unser and Andretti, finished 20th and 22nd, respectively. Al's car broke a half shaft and Andretti's transmission lever snapped. Leonard hung on for fourth.

Bettenhausen captured the Trenton 200, setting a track record in the process.

He roared around the mile-and-a-half track at an average speed of 146.211 miles per hour, leaving a field of 23, including the so-called "Superman" and "Superteam" in the dust.

Robert McCloskey was second by four laps and Gordon Johncock finished third.

Bettenhausen, who because of the victory is the leading driver in the point standings, will race again next month in the Indianapolis 500.

"I didn't know how well I could run until the race was half over," Bettenhausen said. He took the lead on the 49th lap and held it for the remaining 85.

Bettenhausen picked up $10,000 for the win out of a total purse of $75,000. His third career victory came before a crowd of 23,500. It was the first time in the track's history that two generations of the same family won a major race.

The late Tony Bettenhausen, his father, won at Trenton in 1959 in a 100-mile championship race when the track was still a one-mile oval.
